Brody Promises a Panacea For Most of the Nation's Ills

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michael James Brody, who now says he will distribute $100 billion, or maybe an even trillion, also promises a plan for peace in Vietnam to President Nixon plus cures for cancer and all other diseases.

Brody, whose long red hair and hip clothing belie his claimed wealth, insists he will give away money to anyone who needs it.

Before a national television audience on the Ed Sullivan Show Sunday night, Brody, 21, played a 12-string guitar and sang a ballad written by Bob Dylan, "You Ain't Goin' Nowhere." Then he proclaimed again:

"I'm worth 100 billion dollars. Does that stagger your mind? In fact, that was yesterday. I might be worth a trillion today."

Crowds of people, many of whom said they hoped for a gift from Brody, mobbed the college dropout philanthropist as he entered and left the theater. "You're killing me," he shouted before police hustled him into a car and he drove away.

He made promises to bestow massive sums upon North Vietnam in order to end the war and called on Nixon to meet him this afternoon at Kennedy International Airport here to discuss poverty and world peace.

"I have cures for all diseases," Brody said. "I have a cure for cancer."

He promised to disclose it at the airport during a news conference.

A reporter for the New York Times, who traveled to Puerto Rico with the Brodys over the weekend, reported today the young heir conceived his plan to give away his money while he was "tripped out on drugs."

The report added Brody met Renee (his wife), when she came to Scarsdale, N.Y., where he lived in a rented $80,000 house, "to sell Michael and some of his friends some hashish."

Renee is the former Renee Louise DuBois of Ashokan.

As Brody escalated estimations of his wealth Sunday, circumspect statements from his bankers were less dazzling.

Officials of the Continental Bank of Chicago, who would not discuss Brody's actual net worth, said the initial reports he had inherited $25 million were a "gross exaggeration." The money came from Brody's maternal grandfather, John F. Jelke, the oleomargarine manufacturer, who died in 1966. The estate, filed for probate, was said to be worth $6,881,000, divided among several beneficiaries.

91st Congress Returns

Capitol Fight Looms on Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 91st Congress returned to the capital today, its Democratic majority poised to open the election-year session by challenging President Nixon's call for a cut in education spending.

Even before Nixon goes to Capitol Hill Thursday to deliver his first State of the Union message, congressional Democrats may send him a message of their own—go ahead and veto the budget-raising appropriation for education and health programs.

The $19.7 billion appropriation is for a budget year already more than half over. The White House has said flatly Nixon will veto it, because it exceeds his budget by $1.26 billion.

Democrats will need a two-thirds vote, first in the House and then the Senate, to override a veto. GOP leaders express confidence any override attempt will fail, and even House Speaker John W. McCormack has said it will be difficult to defeat the President.

The bill tops the Senate agenda. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the debate will begin without the traditional delay to await the State of the Union address.

Democratic leaders see the issue as one of national priorties, insisting that money for more education and health research can be pared from other outlays —primarily defense. Republican loyalists insist rejection of the extra spending is vital in Nixon's efforts to combat inflation.

The House passed the bill before the break, so final Senate rollcall, likely this week, would send the measure to the White House.

Even as the HEW spending debate begins, Nixon has ordered new cuts in his budget for fiscal 1971, which begins July 1.

That budget blueprint may go to Congress about Feb. 2.

Nixon wants original estimates trimmed by about $3 billion, to approximately $200 billion, to keep the budget in balance without new taxes.

The Nov. 3 congressional elections, with the entire House and 35 Senate seats at stake, will cast a political influence over much of the session.

But with his major proposals still awaiting action, Nixon is going to need Democratic votes on both sides of the Capitol, and that may lead to a conciliatory political tone—at least until autumn.

Two current appropriations bills, the veto threatened measure for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, and $1.8 billion in foreign aid funds, have not cleared Congress yet.

The agencies involved are operating under resolutions which authorize spending at past rates. The stop-gap measures expire Jan. 30.

Among other major issues on the congressional agenda:

—Welfare legislation. Nixon proposed an overhaul to guarantee a minimum $1,600 a year for a family of four, with reduced assistance for the working poor.

—Crime. Bills are pending to provide new legal weapons for use against organized crime, and to combat narcotics traffic —while easing the penalty for personal use of marijuana.

—A revised administration bill to authorize $3.1 billion in federal aid for mass transit systems is ready for debate, and a four-year extension of federal aid to education will be soon.

—Nixon will be sending Congress his first package of farm legislation, and it is likely to produce partisan battle. Existing farm price support programs expire at the end of the year.

—A civil rights fight, possibly a filibuster, looms when the Senate takes up an extension of the Voting Rights Act sometime after March 1.

Communist Mine Ambush Takes Heavy S. Viet Toll

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops, using a pellet-spewing directional mine, ambushed a South Vietnamese officer candidate company at the edge of Saigon today, killing 18 men and wounding 35 others.

It was the heaviest casualties for South Vietnamese forces in a single action since Nov. 18 when the Viet Cong killed 55 in one battle.

Terrorists killed two children in a grenade attack on a South Vietnamese elementary school, communiques said, and Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners shelled 30 allied posts across the country overnight, wounding 27 Americans.

In Saigon, informed Allied sources said U.S. warplanes struck heavily at North Vietnamese troops in Laos over the weekend after they seized a vital hill in the Plain of Jars. Three North Vietnamese battalions had pushed Laotian government troops off the hill near Ban Ban in Northwest Laos.

The reports of new action came as Allied military sources said the Viet Cong had begun conscripting children as young as 9 years old in what the sources saw as a reflection of a severe Communist manpower crisis.

The South Vietnamese were ambushed near a training ground 10 miles north of Saigon and near the government Thy Duc Infantry School. The attack killed 16 officer candidates along with an officer instructor and a civilian. The wounded included 34 cadets and an officer instructor.

Terrorists threw grenades into a grade school at Thanh Quyet, nine miles south of the northern coastal city of Da Nang today. The explosions killed two students and wounded 13 others.

Military spokesmen said in a weekly report the number of American servicemen in South Vietnam totaled 465,200 as of Jan. 15, compared with 467,500 on Jan. 8.

U.S. infantrymen killed 29 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Sunday in four battles in two areas of South Vietnam.

American forces sustained no casualties in the four engagements the U.S. Command said. Two of the battles were in the northern quarter of the country and two near the U.S. 25th Infantry Division base at Cu Chi, 20 miles northwest of Saigon.

In two Mekong Delta clashes, South Vietnamese forces killed 17 Communist troops with light South Vietnamese casualties, spokesmen said.

In Saigon, Allied sources said Sunday the Viet Cong command has begun to conscript children as young as 9 in an attempt to refill its depleted ranks.

Allied sources quoted a document they considered extremely reliable. It said the Communist command in South Vietnam's northern provinces had ordered all youths between 9 and 15 years old into the guerrilla ranks.

The document also mentioned establishment of suicide squads to kill local South Vietnamese government officials. The sources said they assumed the youngsters would take part in such terrorist plans.

A South Vietnamese opposition political group called Sunday for a 14-day cease-fire in South Vietnam over the lunar new year period.

Tran Ngoc Lieng, chairman of the Progressive Nationalist Forces, proposed the truce begin Jan. 30 and run through Feb. 12.

In Paris allied officials said today the United States and South Vietnam will send full negotiating teams to Thursday's Vietnam peace talks session.

The decision was taken despite indications from the two chief Communist negotiators that they will again stay away from the four-way discussions, now in their second year, the sources said.

Pham Dang Lam, the South Vietnamese chief negotiator, returned to Paris Sunday from Saigon after a two-week absence and told newsmen he would attend this week's meeting.

He will join U.S. delegation leader Philip C. Habib, who in Lam's absence has been the only chief negotiator to attend the past two sessions of the stalemated talks.

Leaders of both the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegations have been absent from the talks since before Christmas.

Xuan Thuy, the chief North Vietnamese negotiator, said he was protesting what he called the American downgrading of the talks by Washington's refusal to name a successor of equal status to U.S. chief negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge, who resigned in early December.

Reveal New 28 District Lines

ALBANY (Special to the Daily Freeman)

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. lost most of southern Dutchess County, but kept Ulster County, under the new congressional reapportionment plan drawn up by the State Legislature late this morning.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock), a member of the Reapportionment Committee, told The Daily Freeman that the new 28th Disctrict will be one of the largest (in area) in New York State.

The district will include all of Ulster County, all of Greene, Columbia, Schoharie, Delaware and parts of Otsego and Sullivan and Montgomery Counties.

The southern boundary of the 28th runs from the Connecticut border to the city of Hudson along the boundaries of the Dutchess County towns of Amenia, Washington, Pleasant Valley and Hyde Park.

Sections of Dutchess south of that boundry line will go to Congressman Martin McKneally of Newburgh. The area includes the City of Poughkeepsie, the Town of Wappinger and the City of Beacon, areas where Fish won heavily in his congressional campaign in 1968.

Fish also will pick up four townships in Montgomery County and half of Sullivan County. The other half of Sullivan County goes to McKneally. McKneally also gets all of Putnam County (part of which was in the 28th District), all of Orange County and a section of Rockland County.

Bell said the new plan was "exacting," with a deviation of less than 400 persons in each district which will average 409,324 persons according to the 1960 census.

Bell said there were deviations of up to 30,000 persons under the old plan.

This current plan will be in effect for two years. The congressional districts will be reapportioned again after the 1970 census.

City Construction in 1969 Near $1.5 Million Mark

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

City construction in 1969 amounted to almost $1.5 million according to the annual report released by the Kingston Building Department.

City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe told The Freeman that new construction in Kingston amounted to $1,467,371 last year as compared to $1,323,352 in 1968.

The biggest item of construction in 1969 continued to be in commercial buildings. Nine permits were issued for a total of $544,500 in commercial construction. The department collected $947 in fees for issuing permits for that construction. In 1968 the total for commercial buildings was $392,254 for three projects indicating that commercial buildings are on the increase in the city.

New dwellings also showed a marked increase last year over 1968. Ten permits totaling $282,150 in construction were issued in 1969 compared to six permits for $190,000 worth of construction in 1968.

Swimming pools continued to be a popular item in 1969 although there was a marked decrease from the previous year. Permits for 14 pools were issued last year totaling $37,883 as compared to 20 permits in 1968 totaling $73,785.

Sixteen permits for garages totaling $112,785 were taken out in 1968 as compared to 23 permits last year, totaling $34,300.

Additions and alterations combined for almost $600,000 in construction last year, a marked increase over 1968. There were 59 permits issued for additions for a total of $258,768 worth of construction and 44 permits issued for alterations for a total of $224,096 in construction. The total for additions and alterations in 1968 was $406,544.

The department returned $3,293 to the city treasurer in fees collected in 1968 as compared to $3,921 last year.

Protestors—A Draft Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today stripped draft boards of the power to speed up the induction of Vietnam war protestors.

Justice William O. Douglas, in a 5-3 decision, said the court had searched federal draft laws in vain for any clues that Congress desired to give draft boards this authority.

He said "it is a broad, roving authority, a type of administrative absolutism not congenial to our lawmaking traditions."

The only punitive power draft law provides, Douglas said, is prosecution of registrants who refuse to submit to induction orders.

Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall supported the decision. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Potter Stewart and John M. Harlan concurred in its effect on a Minnesota man but would have allowed local boards some of the authority the majority denied them.

The court ruled in the case of David Earl Gutknecht, 22, of Gaylord, Minn., whose draft call was accelerated when he turned in his draft card at an antiwar protest in Minneapolis in 1967.

Meanwhile, Florida Gov. Claude Kirk told the Supreme Court today he is directing the state's school districts not to abide by a court order for immediate school desegregation.

Delivering his motion personally to the court, Kirk said Florida could not accomplish the scope of desegregation ordered in the time allowed.

Kirk's motion said that in order to avoid "the immediate harmful consequences" of the court's Feb. 1 deadline, he was advising the court of his "intention to issue an executive order directing all counties in this state affected thereby not to alter or change the school calendar during mid-year."

Kirk said he also is instructing the schools not to "take any action which would cause the schools to close in order to transfer personnel and pupils, and not to incur any expenses for which current county and state funds are not available."

The motion asks for a rehearing and seeks a delay until next fall.

"What's so great about February?" Kirk asked in an interview on the court's steps.

At the same time the state of Louisiana submitted a motion for emergency consideration of a petition for rehearing.

The court ruled in the case Jan. 14 ordering desegregation by Feb. 1 for about 300,000 school children in five deep South states.

"We expect the court to allow us to be heard," Kirk said, "which we have never been allowed. Under the law we couldn't intervene until now."

Timothy Leary in Laredo— Harassed by Adminstration

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. Timothy Leary, who enters a federal courtroom today to stand trial a second time on charges stemming from the discovery of three ounces of marijuana carried by his daughter, said he is being harassed for political reasons.

"The Nixon administration does not have any faith in the democratic process and they want to use the power of government to harass us," Leary said. "Anyone who hears that the government is trying me after a unanimous Supreme Court decision knows that there is something fishy here or it is unfair."

Leary is to be tried on charges of smuggling the marijuana into the United States. The maximum sentence for the charge is 20 years in prison and a fine of $20,000.

"I'm running for governor of California," Leary said. "I should be back in my own state turning on my voters there instead of having to spend the time and energy here going through a case that we know we'll win."

Leary was convicted in 1966 of failing to declare the marijuana and pay the tax on it when he crossed from Mexico. He was sentenced to 30 years in prison and fined $40,000 but the U. S. Supreme Court reversed the conviction.

The court said a declaration would have forced him to reveal incriminating evidence against himself.

Leary's daughter, Susan, who carried the marijuana in a silver snuffbox held between her legs, was convicted of illegally transporting and concealing marijuana and given a probated sentence.

Judge Ben Connally, who presided over Leary's first trial, also was in charge of this one.

Benedictine Takes an Efficient View

KINGSTON — Benedictine Hospital has put into effect this month a hospital management engineering program as part of its "continuing effort to restrain hospital costs through increased productivity and better utilization of resources."

The hospital has hired, as its efficiency expert, Robert R. Schwarz, who will work at the hospital at least two days a week for about a year.

Schwarz' services were arranged by agreement with the Hospital Educational Research Fund of the Hospital Association of New York State. A project director with the association, he previously was management engineering director for Yale New Haven Hospital in Connecticut and did industrial engineering work for U. S. Steel, Olin-Mathieson and other nationally known companies.

According to Sister Mary Charles, Benedictine administrator, "The primary objective of the study will be to give the best community hospital service with the help of modern management engineering techniques."

Initially Schwarz plans to concentrate his efforts in the area of nursing service. Members of the staff will become involved in the study themselves, he explained. An attitude survey is being taken and employes are encouraged to present ideas to the engineer who will recommend solutions, all of which will be subject to administrative approval.

Schwarz will be serving Benedictine with a program aimed at improving the quality of patient care and making more effective use of available resources.

According to Sister Mary Charles, the management engineer's study will have a four-fold objective: a continuation of the hospital's high level of service; to insure adequate staffing based on both normal conditions and workload peaks that often occur; that procedures and systems employed encourage efficiency and are consistent with hospital objectives; and finally, that quality is assured through internal department checks.

Schwarz received his bachelor's degree from Northeastern University at Boston and his master's from Ohio State University.

He resides in Clifton Park, Saratoga County with his wife and four children.

Rock Smashes Windshield of Car on Route 28

TOWN OF KINGSTON — State Police continued investigation today of an incident that occurred at about 2:45 p.m. on Sunday on Route 28 in this township. Troopers said John W. Hoag, 22, of Boiceville, was driving his car along the highway when an object, believed to have been a rock, crashed through the car windshield.

Hoag was treated at Kingston Hospital where fragments of glass were removed from his eyes and face, it was reported.

2 Drivers Cited

HIGHLAND — State Police cited two motorists on charges of driving motor vehicles while intoxicated Sunday night.

Trooper C. J. Bebensee booked Huston Robinson, 46, of Landers Street, Newburgh, for driving while intoxicated on Route 9W in the Town of Marlborough at about 10 p.m. Robinson also was cited for unlicensed operation and having no inspection sticker.

Taken before Lloyd Town Justice Lewis DiStasi, the Orange County man was held in $165 bail pending a hearing.

The other man booked for drunken driving was identified as Knute Helle, 57, of Route 3, Kingston. The Highland State Police patrol picked the man up on Route 32 in the Town of Ulster. Helle was released pending a hearing before Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis on Feb. 3.

Bell Seeking New Tax Map System for N. Y.

ALBANY

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) has introduced bills asking for uniform tax maps for all New York State counties, mandatory training for assessors, and systematic reappraisal of each parcel of land on tax maps at least once every four years.

Bell's proposed legislation calls for the state to pay for setting up the new system of tax maps while the counties pay maintenance and operation costs thereafter.

Bell said the need is long overdue for establishing statewide uniform real estate taxing procedures and methods administered by trained personnel on a systematic, orderly, and equitable basis.

"This tax mapping appraisal and assessor training proposal can provide much needed reform and retain local home rule in a system of elected and trained assessors," Bell said.

"I certainly hope the legislature will pass some form of real property tax reform measure at this legislative session as well as make an effort to help equalize the heavy tax burden on real estate," he concluded.

Weekend Burglaries Under Police Probe

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON

Detectives today continued investigation of a rash of weekend burglaries in the city.

Detective Lt. Charles McCullough said the places entered included the Uptown Post Office at 50 Main Street, the Promise Land Restaurant at 240 Foxhall Avenue, Governor Clinton Market and Larry's Mobile Service Station on Greenkill Avenue.

The restaurant was entered through a cellar door, but authorities said apparently nothing was taken and there was no sign that anything had been disturbed.

McCullough said the post office was entered by prying a rear door sometime Saturday night or early Sunday. He said nothing was missing.

The market was entered apparently with a key, as authorities said they found no evidence of a forced entry. Police said an undetermined amount of petty cash was taken.

The service station was broken into by removing a cardboard from a window that had been previously broken. McCullough said detectives learned that the candy, cigarette and soda machines had been pried open and about $2 in silver taken by the intruders. The burglary took place between 10 p. m. yesterday and 1:05 a. m. today when it was reported.

School Parents to Meet

KINGSTON

The advisory committee of the Kingston Consolidated School District Parents Association has announced plans for its first general meeting to be held Wednesday Feb. 4, at 8 p.m., at the George Washington School.

Three initial committees have been appointed by John J. Erickson, chairman of the advisory committee. They are: the Nominating Committee, chaired by Mrs. Melvin Mones, who are presently working to present a slate of candidates for office to the group at large; the Planning Committee, under Mrs. Stanley Leyden, whose main function will be to conduct a massive publicity campaign to advise all parents in the consolidated school district of the meeting; and the By-Laws Committee, headed by William M. Daum, whose task will be too draft by-laws for approval at the first general meeting.

Newly-formed, the Kingston Consolidated School District Parents Association came into being as a result of desire upon the part of area parents to become a more integral part of the school system. Preferably to be known as the Kingston Area Parents Association, the aims of this group are to promote and represent the interests of parents in matters affecting the educational welfare of students enrolled in the Kingston Consolidated School District.

Proposals will be made at the Feb. 4 meeting that the group be governed by a board of directors, comprised of 21 members, representing all schools of the Kingston Consolidated School District. In addition, four officers will be elected from the group at large.

ROUTE 28 CRASH SCENE — Three persons were injured at 8:15 p. m. Sunday in a two-car collision on Route 28 one mile east of Route 375, Town of Woodstock. Photo shows one of the badly damaged vehicles. Trooper Robert Mackey reported Lewis Hall, 57, of West Hurley, was entering the highway from a side road when his car was in collision with an eastbound auto operated by Mrs. Dianne Elgart, of 3360 21st Street, Long Island City. Troopers said a snowbank obstructed the vision of the drivers. Taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance were Mrs. Elgart, who sustained lacerations of the nose, and 9-year-old Seth Elgart, who was treated for lacerations of the tongue. Authorities said Hall complained of back and chest pains. (Freeman photo by Fitzgerald).

Busy Week for State Lawmakers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York's legislators headed today into a busy week in which they'll get Gov. Rockefeller's proposed budget and a plan to restructure the state's 41 congressional districts.

Rockefeller will reveal to a joint session tomorrow details of the no-tax, election year budget recommendation, designed to carry out the legislative program outlined in his 'State of the State" message Jan. 7.

The proposed budget is expected to be in excess of 7 billion, a record. But Rockefeller has said he believes income from the state's natural growth will provide the balance required by the state constitution.

The reapportionment plan could be revealed today. Its Republican architects put the finishing touches on it last week and said they were prepared to report it out today or tomorrow for a vote later in the week.

The legisative committee was working against a Jan. 30 deadline to redraw the congressional districts to comply with the U.S. Supreme Court requirement for a "one-man, one-vote" form of representation.

In New York State, this should mean districts of 410,000 population. Some districts, notably those on Long Island and in Manhattan and The Bronx, are well under this level and others are well above it.

The district having the most excessive population—435,880—is one in Buffalo represented by Thaddeus J. Dulski, a Democrat.

While the legisators redrawing the congressional lines worked behind closed doors, enough detail leaked out that it became known some incumbent congressmen would be thrown into the same districts.

Among these are Reps. Daniel Button, a Republican, and Samuel S. Stratton, a Democrat.

The redrawn congressional districts will be used in the November election.

Rockefeller and all state legislators will be seeking re-election in the November election and this was a major reason the governor's no-tax budget had been expected.

The 1969-70 budget was $6.4 billion and a 70-71 budget in excess of 7 billion could mean an increase of 14 per cent.

It would appear, then, that the Republican governor is banking on continued growth in the economy under a Republican administration in Washington.

Among other things, the growth would be reflected in the state's personal income tax and the three per cent sales tax.

Rockefeller frequently has expressed great faith in the soundness of New York's broad-based and diversified business enterprises.

A major part of his budget is expected to deal with increases in aid to education. He already has committed himself to an additional $300 million to schools in the next school year.

This falls short, however, of the $395 million recommendation of the chairman of the legislature's study committee on education, and the $795 million demand of Democrat minority leaders.

Rockefeller also has proposed an extra $136 million for welfare to pay for increases in the cost of living. Welfare spending is pegged at just under $1 billion for the current fiscal year.

U.S., Peking—The Expectations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, seeking a new era in its relations with Peking, plans to propose to Communist China in Warsaw this week the two countries take small, practical steps to open up trade, travel and communications between them.

Nixon administration officials expect slow progress in the Warsaw talks opening Tuesday and would not be surprised if there was no movement at all for some months. But they have been encouraged by the speed and businesslike manner in which the Chinese have responded to recent U.S. overtures for discussions.

Behind their view is a belief Red China's sharpening border quarrel with the Soviet Union is causing Peking to reassess its traditionally hostile attitude toward the United States.

The first of what amounts to a new series of ambassadorial meetings—such talks were held between 1955 and 1968—will be in the Chinese embassy at Warsaw. They were arranged as a result of preliminary contacts there Dec. 3, 11 and Jan. 7.

Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel, a professional diplomat with long experience in handling relations with Communist countries, will represent the United States. Lei Yang, a Chinese diplomat in the Polish capital, is expected to speak for Peking. It was Lei who got the quick response from Peking to arrange the Tuesday meeting after Stoessel's first proposal Dec. 3.

The meeting will be the 135th in the series of talks that lapsed two years ago. While the Tuesday session officially represents a continuation of the series, in practical effect it is regarded as a fresh start with more promise than existed earlier.

The unchanging barrier to any progress in the early meetings was Red China's insistence that the United States abandon Nationalist China on Formosa.

The U.S. refusal is unchanged and whether the Peking regime will be willing to bypass this issue now is unknown. But there is some belief here this may prove true.

The Sino-Soviet conflict is the principal element of change in the situation involving the next round of U.S.-China talks.

If Peking leaders foresee a serious possibility of war with Russia, as they have been telling their own people for the past month, they presumably want to try to prevent the United States and Russia from ganging up against them by assuring American neutrality in advance.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers has declared publicly several times the last six months that U.S. policy is one of neutrality. He emphasized in a speech here Thursday "We have no intention of exploiting" Sino-Soviet differences.

But such information as Washington has gotten from foreign governments about Peking's attitude—and its reading of Chinese propaganda—indicates the Chinese still see themselves encircled by hostile countries, including the United States.

The United States withdrawal of forces from Vietnam is another new element in the situation. The troop pullback is developing parallel with the Nixon policy of reducing U.S. involvement in Asia while reaffirming basic commitments to its allies.

Stoessel is in position to argue in the Warsaw talks that the whole trend of U.S.-Asian policy should be evidence that Washington harbors no hostile intentions toward the Chinese mainland.

But officials here believe more is likely to be accomplished in the talks' early stages by advocating small, practical steps to improve relations than by raising large political and strategic issues.

Nevertheless, any Chinese proposal for an agreement of some general nature, such as renouncing force in resolving Sino-American differences, is expected to receive careful and probably favorable U.S. consideration.

The last communications link between the U.S. and China, a commercial system for ordinary message exchanges, was cut by the Chinese in November 1968, according to State Department records.

New Doctor in Saugerties

SAUGERTIES — A new general practitioner has started his practice in Saugerties Village as a direct result of a citizens committee formed by Town of Saugerties Planning Board.

Dr. Frederick Henschel, a physician with a wide variety of experience has established his office at 19 John Street, the office of the late Dr. Ludwig Nemanis, it was announced by Albert J. Cawein, who headed the committee he formed when he served as Planning Board chairman.

Cawein said this does not conclude the work of the committee. The committee is still endeavoring the find a suitable residence for the doctor, his wife and two children, a boy 10½ and a girl 12.

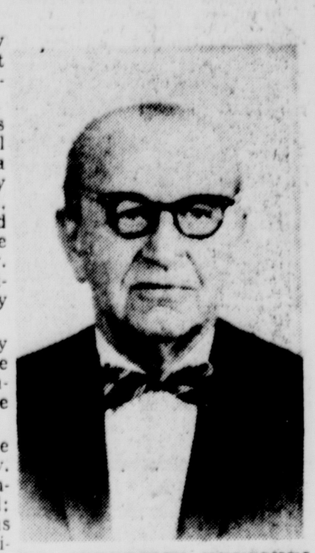

The former Planning Board chairman said the committee is still working on the possibility of bringing another physician to the town or village to further help with the huge medical caseload here.

A native of Germany, Dr. Henschel graduated from Munich University and has practiced in China where he provided emergency service for 1½ years during the Japanese occupation. He acquired further training in New York City at St. Luke's Hospital and at Hudson County Hospital, Secaucus, N.J.

Dr. Henschel also practiced as a ship's surgeon for several years. He recently completed a year's service in the emergency room of Benedictine Hospital, Kingston. He has also practiced in Haiti for many years, where he met his wife, Rose-Mary. She is a bio-chemist and laboratory technician, not presently employed.

The doctor and his family have been in this country since 1960. He specializes in geriatrics which deals with old age and its diseases.

In addition to Cawein the committee includes the Rev. William Baudendistel, a member of the Planning Board; Graham Barkhuff, Mrs. Thomas Zulich and Town Justice Michael Catalinotto.

Rolison Files New Legislation

POUGHKEEPSIE — State Sen. Jay P. Rolison has filed legislation designed to permit the use of the macerator-chlorinator device on boats on the navigable waters of the state which would include the Hudson River. At the present time boat owners are under a mandate to comply with Health Department regulations which in effect would permit only a device known as a holding tank to be used. The senator in commenting on the bill said:

The present regulations of the Health Department are intolerable for the boat owner who has been left in the dark as to what course of action he should take.

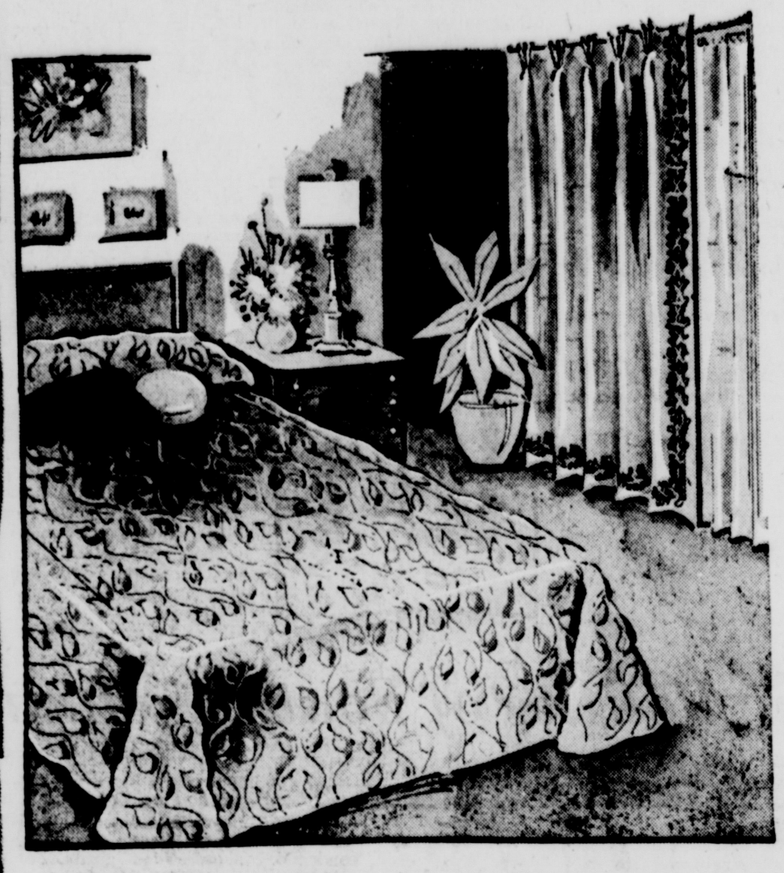

"As chairman of the Senate Committee on Commerce and Navigation it has been my experience that boat owners are anxious to assist in the fight against water pollution, but they quite logically object to unreasonable standards which affect them while the main sources of pollution remain uncorrected.

"In this latter connection I will be developing legislation designed to meet this major source of pollution problem."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JANUARY 19, 1970

Spending for Public Schools

It cost the American people $38.4 billion for the schooling of the 52 million school children in public schools. Local communities contributed $20.3 billion, state government $15.6 billion and the federal government $2.5 billion. These figures are contained in the annual statistical estimates report of the National Education Association.

Noting that for the first time in more than a quarter of a century, the federal contribution had dropped from 8 per cent in 1967-68 to 7.4 per cent in 1968-69, NEA President George D. Fischer calls for a halt to decreasing federal funds for education and a massive outpouring of aid. He urges a formula in which federal aid would amount to one-third the funds for education.

One-third of the $35.9 billion contributed by local and state would come to $12 billion, raising money for education to $48 billion. Dividing that sum among the 52 million school children would mean an average expenditure of $923 per pupil. This would compare with current expenditures per pupil of $1,251 by New York and $438 by Alabama.

As U.S. Commissioner of Education James E. Allen noted recently, education has a low priority in an administration concerned with winding down a war, reducing inflation, cleaning up the environment and reducing crime. As state figures show, the states and cities bear the brunt of the school burden. The federal government can help, but primarily responsibility is local traditionally and should remain so.

'Referendum '70'

A group of young liberal political activists, formed around former members of Robert Kennedy, Eugene McCarthy and Hubert Humphrey campaigners, has been formed for the purpose of assisting "peace congressmen" this fall.

Called "Referendum '70", the group is being financed initially by Arnold Saltzman, a New York industrialist and former chairman of Columbia University's Board of Overseers. His interest, he explains, is to encourage young activists to operate within the political system. The executive chairman is Vern Newton, executive director of the New Democratic Coalition of New York State.

Ending the war in Vietnam at once would be a top-priority issue in determining candidates to be supported. John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard is honorary chairman.

The aim of drawing young activists into the democratic system is laudable. But the test of support is too narrow. Ending the war is everyone's desire, but ending it without destroying our men still in Vietnam, and the innocent for whom others died, will not be served by an immediate end. The real test should be how to end the war safely and honorably.

The Air Force is trying to recruit young women able to do a man's job in the services. Six cadettes are enrolled in the experimental course at four different college campuses. At the end of two years, the girls will be commissioned second lieutenants and assigned to the Woman's Air Force. They compete on an equal footing with the men except in flying. They are not considered equal for combat flying.

A wholly new development is planned for mobile-home parks across the country. With more than 300,000 mobile homes built last year, the industry is backing plans for landscaped mobile communities with underground utilities, paved streets, swimming pool and clubhouse. The key is a big permanent park development, not separate small lots given over to trailers.

"You Should Be Ashamed of Yourself!".

David Lawrence Says
Judiciary Interferes With Operation of School System

WASHINGTON — Probably few people realize the feeling of helplessness and frustration that pervades the public-school systems in the south today, particularly among the teachers. A woman who has been for 14 years a teacher in Atlanta, Ga., has written a letter to President Nixon to tell him what is really happening to education because of the failure of the courts to give adequate time for the adjustments necessary to deal with racial desegregation in the public schools.

The teacher points out that Atlanta has made every effort to meet each requirement by the federal government, and the school system at large has adopted the 58 per cent white to 42 per cent Negro ratio required for the faculty. But it appears this isn't enough, as the federal court now is ordering that the faculty of each individual school must be integrated to that percentage and, as the Atlanta teacher writes, "worst of all, in the middle of a school year." She adds:

"Mr. Nixon, how can anyone fail to see what complete havoc will result from the transferral of approximately 1,700 teachers from one school to another in midyear? Any teacher can tell you what emotional turmoil this will create in the classrooms of Atlanta for both teachers and students alike. It surely would not take a teacher to understand the delay in the learning situation itself which would, of necessity, result from a change of this type.

"Any educator can tell you that a teacher spends much time and effort building up a good 'class climate' and an inter-relationship with his or her students which is conducive to good learning. This is not to mention the obvious fact that it takes time for a teacher to achieve a knowledge of the learning differences, both abilities and difficulties, of each of the children in the class. This is true not only with an elementary teacher with her average of 35 pupils, but more especially with a high school teacher with a daily load of perhaps 150 different students.

"I mention this to try to bring out the point that if it is quality education — the type of situation that is best for each child in a school system — that the federal government is concerned about and is making an effort to achieve, then there needs to be some re-thinking done, because such a step as this cannot fail to bring about the opposite result."

The teacher not only speaks of the disastrous effects of the changes taking place in the middle of the school year, but emphasizes also the inconveniences to the teachers of both races in finding it necessary to travel considerable distances twice each day to go to a school far from their own neighborhoods. This, she declares, has "built up a resentment which is unequal to any we have yet felt." She says:

"To be forced to change one's place of employment is against all that we, as Americans have always held dear, and the fact that it is actually happening to us here in America is unbelievable."

There are some points which the Atlanta teacher didn't mention. Is the federal government, for instance, taking over the running of the public schools of the country? Originally the states were supposed to manage and operate the educational system. If fundamental changes are to be made, certainly ample time for readjustments would seem to be logical. But the courts also have stepped in and even fixed dates on which specific steps must be taken. Never has the judiciary so arbitrarily interfered with the operations of the educational system as it has in the last few months.

The bitterness in the South is deep, not because of desegregation but because of the unfair tactics being used to accomplish it. Most of all, the people resent the fact that schools in other parts of the country are permitted to have segregation — in suburban areas as well as in the cities — and nothing is being done to apply the same rules outside the South that are being imposed in the south.

The situation is complicated even more by the confusion among local lawyers who are conscientiously tring to advise the school systems. They find that Congress has flatly stated that federal funds must not be used to "correct racial imbalance," and that no presidential regulation or law stipulates racial quotas for public schools. Indeed, the present administration has been inclined to let the courts take the full responsibility. But from a legal standpoint, the rights and obligations of the states and of the federal government are by no means clear.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The road north out of Beirut hugs the edge of the Mediterranean, which curls a white lip of contempt at the rocky shore. A half hour later a falpping Coca-Cola sign comes into view and this is Byblos seemingly the most enduring city in the world The ocean and the old city are adversaries; someday the sea will grind Byblos into granulated sand.

There are a few farms on the hill side of the road, but they hold neither the mind nor the eye of the traveler. The true Byblos stands on a black cliff between the road and the sea, the old civilizations looking like an array of broken teeth and cavities. This is man's monument to himself.

At first glance, the ruins with their truncated fluted columns, their ancient cave apartment houses, appear to be a lonely marker to man's perserverance. After proper meditation, the opposite view emerges: man and his works die quickly; the sea prevails.

The wind on the cliff tears the lips away from the teeth and the white combers crash on the tawny sand to scour the base of Byblos for the thousands of centuries necessary to erase it.

Byblos is so old that archeologists claim that the word "bible" originated there. Some say the word "book" comes from Byblos. They are certain that the Phoenicians had a city there in 7,000 B. C. They used it as a port for the exportation of cedars of Lebanon, and from the wood they made a pulp and rolled it flat to make papyrus, or paper.

The Byblos of 9,000 years ago was modern. There was another one before that, as early as the Bronze Age. That one was swallowed up one day in a fury of earthquakes which dropped man and his caves into crevasses at the bottom of the sea. Their stone gods followed them with impassive faces.

Thousands of years later, the Egyptians were sent by Pharaoh to reclaim the vast shelf of rock overlooking the Mediterranean and to govern it. The importance of Byblos was that it stood astride the trade routes between Egypt and Persia on the one side, and Greece, Rome and India on the other. The Egyptians tied a bow in the middle of the ribbon.

They dug deep into the shelf of rock and built apartments, some of two rooms, some of three or more. Their soldiers patrolled the sea road, taxed whom they pleased, stole whatever they needed, and enslaved those who were strong enough to dig. They miscalculated in one respect: everything that man makes, including himself, is destined to be destroyed.

In the sixth Egyptian dynasty, Byblos was pillaged by an invader never mentioned by name in the hieroglyphics of the Nile country. In the 12th century B.C., which is as recent as the slow wink of a bright star, Byblos became the metropolis of Phoenicia.

Two hundred years later, the wind-swept melancholy rock was ruled by Ahiram who was fearful that when he died, invaders would steal his sarcophagus, his jewels and vestments. Long before the event, he ordered slaves to chisel a circular hole about 20 feet in circumference straight down for thirty feet, then cut diagonally to the right for an additional depth of 30 feet.

The huge hole was dug, but the Phoenician engineers argued that they had no means of lowering a heavy casket down a crooked hole. Ahiram ordered the slaves to go to the beach and bring sand up to fill the hole. This too was done, and soon the hole had been obliterated.

When Ahiram died, the engineers placed the heavy, jewel-encrusted casket on top of the hole. The slaves stepped into the sand and began to dig. The loose slippery earth began to fall slowly with the casket. As the level of the sand dropped, the dead king descended, made his turn to the right, and came to rest in a cave of rock.

It was clever, it was deceptive, but it fooled no one. Roman legions crossed the Bosporos and marched on Jerusalem to tax the Jews. They stopped at Byblos, wrecked the gods of Phoenicia, and built temples with fluted columns to their gods. Early in the twelfth century, the Crusaders paused in their search for the Holy Grail, and they found a round and crooked hole with nothing in it. They struck down the Roman temples and watched them crash into the Phoenician apartments.

The Crusaders built a fort in the name of Jesus Christ. I stood there, the sea wind roaring hollow messages in my ears. Far below, the sea punched white water against the cliff. "This too shall pass," I said. "This too shall pass."...

Jack Anderson Says
Warning About Eye Cataracts Was Censored by HEW Chiefs

WASHINGTON — A warning by scientists at the Welfare Department that microwave ovens can cause "eye cataracts and possibly other adverse biological effects" was quietly cut out of a recent official HEW statement on the controversial cookers.

Instead, to the relief of such oven makers as General Electric, Hotpoint, Litton, Amana, Raytheon, Tappan and Magic Chef, the cataract warning was replaced by a bland, reassuring statement from HEW Secretary Robert Finch.

The effect was to soothe buyers of the miracle ovens and to salvage the profits of the manufacturers.

To the credit of Finch's office, when this column inquired about deletion of the cataracts warning, Public Information Director Baxter Omohundro ordered a full and honest disclosure.

The press release, which originated in the HEW Radiological Health Bureau, said in part: "Animal experiments have shown that relatively high levels of microwave radiation can cause eye cataracts and possibly other biological effects."

When the warning reached the front office, it was discussed by Assistant Secretary Dr. Roger Egeberg, Surgeon General Jesse Steinfeld and Consumer Protection head C.C. Johnson.

Big-Daddying the Public

"The statement on cataracts was not included because we did not want to unduly alarm the public," a spokesman explained. He said all three officials agreed it should be cut out.

In place of the warning, a statement by Finch was inserted.

"This is a relatively new industry and we believe it doubtful that any significant health damage has occurred," said the Finch statement. This is what the public saw, and it is technically correct as far as it goes. But left out was any mention of the eye cataracts.

The news release also ignored a grim finding by HEW scientists in December. Prepared by the Intelligence Branch of HEW's Division of Electronic Products, it warns gravely:

"The potential health effects of microwave are (that) organs of the body, such as the eyes, are unable to rapidly dissipate heat and are therefore highly vulnerable. Microwave ovens, known as radaranges and electronic ovens are operated generally at frequencies (which) are important biologically because an individual can be subjected to serious injury while being totally unaware of his exposure."

On Jan. 12, HEW and other health officials met with the oven makers to discuss the "problem of leakage," but again Surgeon General Steinfeld dodged a much-needed warning to the consumer by saying: "No injuries have been reported."

As late as December, an HEW survey showed ovens in use with high radiation leakage. The totals, part of an official report, show that Amana has by far the best safety record. Litton did poorly, with more than 40 per cent of the ovens tested below HEW-proposed standards and more than 30 per cent below the industry's own standards. The only other oven with a substantial number of tests was Raytheon, with almost half the tested ovens below HEW standards.

Out With the Anti-Politicians!

The cataracts case comes at a time when a mini-purge is going on against some of HEW's most useful public information staffers, men who have fought political-minded HEW officials to make sometimes unpleasant information available to the public.

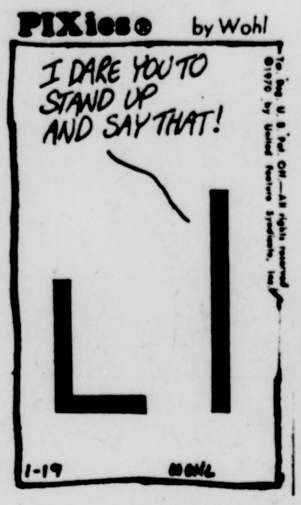

Deputy Undersecretary Frederic Malek is trying to remove Cliff Johnson, whose National Institutes of Health is well known for its open information policies. Malek conceded to this column that "I've raised the issue: Is this the best guy for the job?"

Malek, a brash young Republican appointee, went to Johnson's boss, Dr. Robert Q. Marston, in an effort to get Johnson thrown out to make room for a political hack. Dr. Marston faltly refused to bow to Malek. Johnson is still there.

Malek also has tried to remove Tom Williams as Public Affairs head of the Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Administration. Williams, a veteran civil servant, was getting out information on air pollution long before the issue caught on.

Williams refused to go without a fight, so Malek is now trying to shift him into a makework job or exile him to "long-range planning."

Two able HEW "flacks" — as public relations people are known to newspapermen — have already been purged. One was Williams' deputy, Paul Schuette, a former Washington Post reporter. He was shipped off to Baltimore to work in the Social Security Administration 35 miles from his home.

The Politics of South Vietnam

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

SAIGON — (NEA) — Deep within the top secret vaults of the U.S. command here there are rumored to be "contingency plans" which would protect American soldiers in the event of a revolt by our South Vietnamese allies.

The plans are said to cover these possibilities:

(1) A change of government to one hostile to the United States; (2) a desperate uprising by the people, or (3) a Communist acquisition of Saigon power.

Right now it appears such plans will never need go operational. Politics in the South aren't particularly boiling. The people are relatively quiet. And the Communists are farther from control than ever before.

But who knows about tomorrow? The fact that contingency plans to fight one's friends may exist at all is another ironic illustration of the handwringing unpredictability of the goopy war in Southeast Asia.

In effect, what the plans conclude is that after a decade of American dedication to the stabilizing and democratization of South Vietnam, the nation essentially remains a place where good pals must employ food tasters.

Old hands here, foreign and domestic, agree this fact may be the only hard fact in the country today. The war may be going well, the fighting may have tapered off, the Americans may be able to withdraw. But the future of South Vietnam still hangs by a much knotted sociopolitical string.

One Vietnamese educator puts it thus:

"The war began in the first place because the people had no trust in the government. And it probably will never really end until the people do."

If this prediction holds, unfortunately, it looks as if the battling will go on for some time. Although the government of South Vietnam has noticeably improved in recent years, the people here continue to be suspicious.

Some of the suspicion, probably, is not warranted. Many people here cling to old memories about their governments — firing squads, political torturing in cages at the Saigon zoo. Gestapo tactics of the muscular elite — that simply do not apply to the administration now in charge.

But much of the suspicion is warranted. Especially that which deals with the corruption and self-seeking of officialdom at all levels.

Such as:

All crimes in South Vietnam's large cities, including murder, can be absolved by proper administration of pressure or money. Graft is out of control in police and other public agencies. In some cases, it is even condoned. "Our salaries," one Saigon cop says with a wink, "are very small."

Land reform proposals, which are absolutely vital to politician-proletariat trust, and which would give nearly two million Vietnamese an earthy stake in the nation's future, are being steadily ignored by the lawmakers. The reason? Many of the lawmakers are absentee owners of the land in question.

Communist agents, constantly caught and jailed, are likewise constantly released and forgotten. Sometimes because of bribes. Sometimes because of connections. Sometimes because cowardly officials are simply afraid of threatened reprisals by the captured Reds.

Bureaucratic snobbery, evident in all nations, is especially odorous here. Government agencies operate at their leisure, government functionaries are Napoleonic, government limousines sweep people aside on the streets. And officials in every agency have their hands out with expectations.

The message of these few examples is perfectly clear. The government looks out for itself — the people must do the same.

So when a farmer must bribe an officer to get his crop on the Saigon market, he may instead skip the bribe and sell to the Viet Cong. And when an importer must provide an official favor (sometimes his wife) to acquire his goods, he may instead keep his wife and deal with the black market. And when the widow of a war victim must give 60 per cent of her government insurance to get back 40, she may wonder if the Communists could be any worse.

People here are not blind. They see new cars, gaudy gold pieces and fine silk clogging Saigon streets, and they don't understand why the nation can't afford fertilizer plants. They see hotels and mosaic homes rising everywhere, and they don't understand why most children still sleep with rats. They see the United States spending $30 billion on their country each year, and they don't understand why their average annual income remains $150.

Therefore, suspicion. Bitterness, too. And continuing war.

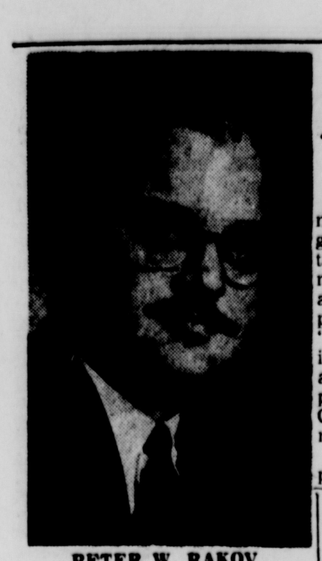

In fairness, all is not the fault of the South Vietnamese government. There are thousands of compassionate officials here; there are hundreds of things being done; and perhaps peace, justice and democracy may yet prevail in the land.

But the present fact is the politics are pork-barrel, the people unhappy — and the United States has contingency plans to get out in the open in case the walls of this precarious national structure come crashing down.

"Look at this! Nixon wants me to be the new head of Selective Service. What did I ever do to HIM?

Walgreen Drugs Are Expecting Record Sales

Walgreen Drug Stores expect record sales approaching three-quarters of a billion dollars for its fiscal year ending next Sept. 30 reported Charles R. Walgreen III, company president, as he addresed his firm's annual shareowners meeting.

First quarter 1970 fiscal sales (ending Dec. 31) reflected his optimism. They reached a record $211,025,484, at 10.3 per cent increase over last year s $191,208,000.

At the meeting, conducted by board chairman Charles R. Walgreen, Jr., the eleven board directors were reelected for one-year terms. Also, the shareowners approved the company's stock purchase option had been signed with International Travel Service, Inc., a Chicago-based travel agency specializing in group travel. He estimated the purchase price would be 10,000 to 15,000 shares of Walgreen stock, based on the agency's 1970 earnings.

Reviewing the firm's expansion program, Walgreen III said the company plans to open the same number of new units (53) as last year. Plans call for 33 drug stores, five giant Globe Department Stores, and Five Walgreen Super Centers. Nine Corky's quick-service restaurants and one Robin Hood restaurant are also planned. However, the new sites this year will have over 50 per cent more selling space than those built in 1969 — primily because of the huge Globe units.

"Globe Department Stores will be expanded in the next few years at a faster rate," Walgreen said. Averaging 100,000 square feet overall. Globe "Shopping Cities" are full-line self-service department stores. Most include automobile service centers and 1,000-car parking areas. The three original Globes acquired in 1962 in Houston have grown to a 17-store chain in ten markets.

"Globe sales, excluding leased departments, amounted to $92,500,000 last year and will be considerably higher this year," Walgreen said.

Continued emphasis will be placed on shopping centers in outlying areas, particularly for the extra-large Walgreen Super Centers, he said. Since these openings are affected by the completion of shopping centers by developers, some could be delayed.

New Computer For Caldor

NORWALK, CONN. — Caldor, Inc., one of the region's most successful and fastest-growing discount retail chains, will soon take delivery of a new third generation computer for use in its inventory control, buying and payroll systems.

Julius Kasinitz, Caldor vice president in charge of operations, said his company has signed a contract with National Cash Register Co. for one of the most advanced computers available, the NCR Century 200.

Kasinitz said the new hardware will substantially improve Caldor's expanded inventory control system, an important cost-contolled operation in retail merchandising. On-hand inventory may be reduced, thus "freeing up" capital for the company, he said. Also, faster inventory turnover can be achieved, resulting in greater overall operating efficiency, he added.

NCR's equipment will also be used by Caldor buyers to analyze trends in consumer habits, maintain proper stock and shelf levels in each of the chain's 14 stores, and rapidly assess value in purchasing opportunities.

Carnegie Tells of the Lion Within Us

Number Seven in a Series
By Mike Rothenberger
Copyright© Dale Carnegie & Associates, Inc. 1967
All Rights Reserved

There is an old story about the lion cub that was lost from his mother and as he wandered about trying to find her he strayed into a flock of sheep. He lived with the sheep, he slept with the sheep and he played with them. As far as the cub was concerned he was one of the sheep because he didn't know the difference.

The weeks and months rolled by and the lion grew large and strong. Then one day, as he was milling around with the sheep, he heard a thunderous roar echoing down across the meadow. He looked up and there on the ditant skyline he saw a full grown lion standing proudly with his shaggy head held high. The sheep were frightened and began to run away but the young lion stood still for a moment as he watched the mighty king of beats standing on the hill. And then he reasoned that he was not a lamb, he was a lion and he belonged with the king of the jungle. He answered with a mighty roar and ran to the top of the hill to join the great lion.

The essence of this story has a striking parallel to the lives of many men and women today, people who have tremendous potential ability with which they could easily multiply, by manifold, the abundance of their lives. But they let the lion sleep within themselves as they mill around in the meadow with the sheep, never realizing their tremendous potential power. Many spend their lives in the drudgery of some sort of menial work which they despise, when they could just as well do something they would enjoy, something which would be much more profitable to them. They go through life, day after day, envying others who seem to be more fortunate, but they do nothing to enhance their own circumstances. Oh yes, they wish and they hope for a better life and dream about what is going to happen sometime off out in the distant future, but they only wish and hope and dream, they take no action.

Fortunate are they who come to realize their great capacity and release the sleeping lion within themselves, for then they may take their rightful place high on the hill of accomplishment with others who enjoy the rewards of a rich and purposeful life.

(The next Dale Carnegie article will appear in Wednesday's newspaper. The course is sponsored by The Daily Freeman.)

Local Chamber Slates Speaker From U. S. Unit

Harrison W. Moore Jr., district manager of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will be the luncheon speaker at Kingston Lions Club meetings Tuesday, it was announced today by President Thomas Henebery.

Moore, whose district encompasses all but the northern counties of the state and New York City, will present, Year of Challenge, Year of Choice.

This 15-minute slide presentation dramatizes today's national and local challenges and challengers. It points out the importance of the 1970 elections. It highlights the role concerned citizens can and should play. It identifies all congressional and gubernatorial seats to be filled and explains the importance of state legislator elections as they relate to new Congressional redistricting.

Moore explained that the Kingston Lions will be the first organization to witness this new presentation. Moore estimates he will present this program to 40-50 groups. Meeting time is 12 noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

BENCH CHOICE—The Washington, D. C., Star reported Sunday that President Nixon has chosen Judge G. Harrold Carswell, 50, of Tallahassee, Fla., to fill the Supreme Court vacancy. Carswell was promoted last summer to the 5th Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. The White House and Justice Department did not comment. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Court-Martial Acquits Marine Captain Poolaw

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A court-martial today acquitted Marine Capt. Robert W. Poolaw, 31, of Anadarko, Okla., on a charge of murdering a Vietnamese prisoner of war.

Poolaw, an American Indian, sat through most of the 6½-hour trial with his head bowed but broke into a broad grin when the verdict was announced.

The captain, who holds the Bronze Star and about 10 other combat medals, had pleaded innocent to the charge of shooting a Vietnamese captured during an operation last Aug. 11 in the Que Son mountains south of Da Nang.

Witnesses identified the dead man as a North Vietnamese prisoner of war.

Prosecution witnesses said the prisoner was taken to a clearing along a jungle trail and that Poolaw ordered his men to leave him alone with the man. The witnesses told of hearing a shot which they said sounded like it came from a .45-caliber pistol.

Only one of the witnesses claimed to have seen the killing.

Secret Parley At Benning on Calley, Civilian

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—Military authorities meet today to decide whether there is enough evidence to try 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. for the murder of a Vietnamese civilian. The incident apparently is unrelated to the alleged My Lai massacre, for which he faces a court-martial.

Attorneys for the young infantry officer will argue Tuesday for dismissal of the charge Calley slaughtered 109 civilians at the South Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai March 16, 1968. They also will seek to have the second charge dropped. Outcome of today's secret meeting may not be known for days.

Defense attorneys George W. Latimer and Maj. Kenneth A. Raby have six motions to be heard Tuesday before Lt. Col. Reid Kennedy, the trial judge. Two of the motions ask the original charge be dismissed, contending Calley cannot get a fair trial because of prejudicial statements.

Crashes Near Beacon Claim Four Lives

FISHKILL

Traffic accidents in New York State over the weekend took the lives of at least 11 persons, including two men and their wives, who were killed in separate Putnam County mishaps that were investigated by State Police.

Fires continued to take a heavy toll in the state, accounting for half of the 22 accidental deaths between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

State Police reported Alexander De Szekely, 37, and his wife, Eileen, of New York City, were killed Sunday when their car skidded on Route 9D south of Beacon and crashed into another car. The victims' car burst into flames and both bodies were severely burned. Police had to use vehicle registration records to identify the bodies.

A short distance away from the fatal crash scene, William Gonzalez, 29, and his 26-year-old wife, Carol of Union Avenue, Newburgh, died Saturday after their car was involved in a headon crash with another automobile. The two victims were pronounced dead at the scene.

Troopers are continuing investigation of both fatalities.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened weak today in moderate turnover.

Although there appears to be little in the news to inspire traders, the airline group may attract special attention following a proposed merger agreement between American Airlines and Trans-Caribbean Airways. Directors of both carriers will vote on the proposal Wednesday.

A Pollution-Free Hudson River Could Mean Water for Everyone

EDITOR'S NOTE: Solving a community's water shortage by tapping the Hudson River will depend greatly on how successful the State's Pure Water Program is in curbing polluters of this expansive water source. This series of two articles will explain what is being done now and also give the consumer a new insight on where natural water goes.

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

KINGSTON

The Hudson River is the greatest water source in the Hudson Valley and one of the most abundant in the state, but many factors enter into a proposal to tap the river flow, the most vital being the progress of curbing pollution.

The Water Resources Commission in a recent survey indicates that in many localities along the vast stretch between Albany and New York City, nearly pure water classified A for water supply use can be found.

Conversely, there are other portions of the river that are badly polluted and can not even be used for recreational purposes.

The year 1970 is not expected to pose any critical water problems due to the abundant rainfall last summer and the great volume of run off from heavy winter snow now apparent.

However, hydrologists and water specialists in the state claim that the increased use of water by industry and the population explosion many bring the state and many of its communities to a critical point by 1980. This gives state authorities 10 years in which to make plans and be prepared for the crisis when it emerges.

The Pure Waters Program of the state which is prepared to pour $1 billion dollars into the project has already made great strides by curbing industrial and municipal pollutors. The Pure Waters Program has made funds available to communities to modernize their sewerage treatment plants so that the effluent poured into the Hudson does not contaminate the expansive water source.

The elaborate report by the Water Resources Commission projected a plan in 1968 to treat Hudson River wastes at all stages so that between 1970 and 1980 a total of 200 million gallons of water per day could be obtained by pumping from the river at Kingston into the Catskill Aqueduct via Ashokan Reservoir.

Special

This appears to be a logical solution except for the salt water factor.

Geologists of the U.S. Geographical Service are periodically warning that salt water from the ocean is backing up farther and farther and most recently the salt water barrier has been reported at a point above Newburgh.

This happens when pressure from the ocean tides push the salt water upriver to a point where it meets and is held by the greater pressure of the fresh water flowing downstream from the river's Adirondack sources.

This could be counteracted by release of a heavy flow from a dam controlled water basin in the North Country. This would increase the fresh water pressure to hold back the northward encroachment of the salt water barrier.

These geologists warn that the river salt content may go farther up river if New York City should pursue its proposal to tap 100,000 million gallons per day from a redeveloped pumping station at Chelsea, north of Beacon.

Poughkeepsie and Highland, who use the Hudson as a water source, at various times of low supply, have reported salt content.

Engineers have proposed the establishment of a Hudson River Basin involving a dam in the Adirondacks which could hold surplus water for use during a dry spell, when 5,500 million gallons per day would be available for release to regulate the flow and control the salt water front.

A new purification system developed early last year, when demonstrated, turned the foul and brackish water of the Hudson into palatable drinking water.

A Milwaukee, Wisc., based firm specializes in desalination equipment (purification of salt water). The process called Acro-Pac purifies water by forcing it under pressure through a newly developed, semi-permeable membrane which in effect sifts out most solid and bacteriological pollutants.

The firm lists the cost of the process at less than 50 cents per 1,000 gallons. It operates on electric power. The process has been reported in use in Vietnam where the U.S. Navy constructed the plant on a barge.

There is also an experimental desalination plant in operation at the eastern end of Long Island which is reported to be making remarkable progress in purifying ocean salt water. Innovations in reducing the cost of purification will eventually be the answer for using the ocean as an inexhaustable water souce.

NEXT: A glowing picture on drinking water for 1970 but an ominous note on the future.

BATHING AT RISK

Half a Million Drug Cache Found in Rensselaer Garage

NASSAU, N. Y. (UPI)—A half million dollars worth of drugs confiscated Saturday night in a garage in this small Rensselaer County community apparently belonged to a dead pharmaceutical salesman, state police said.

Cartons of pills, drugs, vials and bottles were found in the garage. Police said the salesman, who apparently kept the drugs as part of his job, died in 1966. Approximately half of the drugs could be marketed immediately at a $250,000 profit, troopers said.

Included were barbiturates, amphetamines, tranquilizers, pep pills and other types of drugs.

Troopers said it appeared as if local youths discovered the cache, and were slowly pilfering it for personal use.

"Some of the pills found their way to the Syracuse area, which led to their confiscation Saturday night," a state police statement said.

"If this supply was obtained and marketed, it would have been sufficient to satisfy the drug cravings of thousands of addicts for many weeks."

Troopers said the pharmaceutical houses which manufactured the drugs had been contacted and an investigation report would be made to the Rensselaer County district attorney's office.

Vassar Gets $39,595 Grant

POUGHKEEPSIE

Vassar College has received a grant of $39,595 from the National Science Foundation for a second summer institute in historical geology.

The 1970 course, entitled "The Geological Evolution of Eastern North America: A Regional Approach to Historical Geology," will be given from July 6 to Aug. 14. It is intended for teachers in grades 7-12 who have had at least six credits in Geology. Each participant will receive a stipend.

Earth history will be studied through extensive field work in the Hudson Valley, the Adirondacks, central and western New York and northern New Jesey. This course will not duplicate any materials given in the seven Vassar College Summer Institutes in the Fundamentals of Geology, and former participants who meet the eligibility requirements may apply.

Opportunities will be provided to allow each person to make his own mineral, rock, fossil or photographic slide collection if he desires.

Institute participants successfully completing the course will receive a certificate for 6 hours of graduate academic credit for transfer.

Applications must be postmarked by Feb. 16.

Six Injured In Greene Crash

TOWN OF HUNTER

Six persons were injured at 2:30 a.m. Sunday in a two-car headon collision on Route 23A in this Greene County township, according to Leeds State Police who cited one driver for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Troopers said Thomas Wentling Jr., 18, of Greensburg, Pa., was westbound on the highway in the eastbound lane when his car was in a collision with a vehicle operated by Mario Genduso, 31, of Brooklyn.

Wentling was charged with drunken driving and unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle. He also was charged with driving without a license. The summonses are returnable before Town Justice John Glennon. Bail was fixed at $125.

A passenger in the Wentling car, and three passengers in Genduso's auto were injured and treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital in Catskill. Both drivers also were injured, troopers reported.

All young adults, male and female, are invited to come to "PLAN YOUR OWN THING." The purpose of the meeting is to form a club for young people which would deal with the activities, projects and problems which are unique to this age group. This planning group will hopefully map out activites and interests which would attract other interested young adults.

If you are a single young adult, male or female, between the ages of 18 and 25, and you have something you would like to perform or some problem that you would like to solve, but you cannot do it alone — come to the YWCA. Plan to attend this meeting on Thursday, Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. and help get a workable force together.

The YWCA is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

MASSAGE GUMS

Massage your gums regularly to keep them pink and healthy-looking. And don't go out of your way to chip your teeth by foolishly using them to open bobby pins or stubborn plastic food envelopes.

SHOES WITH 30's LOOK

The sling-back, chunky shoes with the platform soles are here for spring. The shoes look comfortable and elegant, with a nostalgic '30's air about them.

Bake Sale

Plans for a bake sale and penny social will be discussed Wednesday at the regular meeting of Kingston Chapter 697, Women of the Moose, 82 Prince Street, Kingston.

All members are urged to attend.

MRS. RICHARD NIXON, following tradition, gave her inaugural gown to the Smithsonian Institution Jan. 14. The dress will be on exhibit in the First Ladies Hall, which now displays an original gown of every lady who has served as the President's hostess. Mrs. Nixon's is of mimosa yellow silk satin, with a bell-shaped skirt, small stand-up collar and narrow cummerbund. Over the sleeveless bodice is a long-sleeved bolero jacket. (UPI Telephoto)

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When my twin girls were born six months ago, I vowed then and there that I, first of all, would not panic; secondly, I would take a few seconds each day to try and think of an easier and faster way to do everything without too much cost.

So here are a few things I've learned so far.

First, a new mother would do well to try disposable diaper liners. With two infants I couldn't afford disposable diapers except when traveling, so along with my diapers I invested 75 cents in a box of 152 liners.

Now I rarely have to rinse out a diaper, and a messy hateful job is gone. Also, I'm sure I save some on my water bill as well as time. Not as many stains on the diapers either.

Next, instead of using my bare hands to spread an ointment on baby bottoms, I use the new diaper liner to spread the ointment. Then I don't have the problem of washing my hands before I pin the diaper.

Mrs. B. Jones

Dear Heloise:

While at the cottage recently, I found myself without pins or my hair rollers. I looked around for a substitute and spotted some toothpicks. Works fine in a pinch.

You may double them for extra strength.

Mrs. C. Cormier

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I've found the solution to the housewife and all her problems. . .

Everybody likes the house clean. But nobody wants to clean up their own mess! If we had trained our families right, and each one picked up what they put down, our houses would be clean.

Mother of Twelve

Decorating Ideas for Ceilings

Crown your room's decor with an unusual, eye-catching ceiling.

In many homes, the only ceiling decoration used to complement a room's furnishings is the light fixture. Today's designers, however, are casting their eye upwards and creating a new look for the ceiling that changes the entire focal concept of a room.

Designers creating rooms for the American Furniture Mart's "America at Home" program use pictures, wallpaper, fabric, polyurethane "beams," as well as paint, to add style, color and originality to the home.

One designer encircled a light fixture with pieces of wallpaper cut into arcs and affixed in a disconnected pattern. Another emphasized the fixutre by outlining it with small pictures.

Wallpaper strips are used by a third designer to create a new architectural look — without having to have the room reconstructed.

Fake beams are another popular design idea for ceilings. The beams can be fixed permanently or for easy removal.

Fabric is another design idea used by decorators — to add color, warmth and originality. One designer has covered a whole ceiling with a floral bed sheet. It can be sponged clean, or can be removed and thrown into the washer and dryer before rehanging.

Other designers have taken only one or two lengths of fabric and formed a canopy over a bed, an unusual "cover" for a sofa or a matching top for almost any upholstery piece.

Bright paint has been used for many years to enliven and enlarge a room with dark paint selected to minimize space and create a smaller, cozier room.

How to best top off your room? Let your imagination be your guide.!

Beef Foldovers for New Tempting Treat

These days a party menu can be anything from a snack plus beverage to a full-scale formal dinner. Here, for the casually festive luncheon are two foods that go together like love and marriage: Flaky Beef Foldovers and vegetable-rich Borsch. Hot, tender, melt-in-the-mouth beef-filled pastries and sturdy soup, they make a sophisticated and unusual main course offering for gala guest occasion or festive family dining.

Flaky Beef Foldovers and Borsch have the taste and appearance that go with elaborate preparation; yet, made with convenience foods all the way, they are short order marvels. Borsch, "nourishing" in the old-fashioned sense yet light and refreshing on the palate, calls on canned beets, bouillon cubes and vegetables cut small to cook quickly for its 15-minute preparation time. Faky Beef Foldovers boast the unbelieveable flakiness of real puff pastry; yet they, too, are done in a matter of minutes. Thawed frozen dough for patty shells make the incomparable pastry; canned roast beef with gravy — cooked, season and succulently sauced before the can is opened — is the mainstay of the moist and rich beef filling. The only trick to remember when these are on the menu is to remove the frozen patty shells from the freezer to the refrigerator the day before, so they'll be thawed and ready for easy rolling.

Borsch with its garnish of glossy sour cream and green onions is good served hot or cold. Flaky Beef Flodovers, however, are at their very best hot or warm from the oven. On the party luncheon menu, the soup — pastry combination might be preceded by a seafood cocktail or crisp relishes with a favorite dip, and followed by a double raspberry sundae: raspberry sherbet topped with sauce of red raspberry preserves.

Flaky Beef Foldovers

1 Pkg. (10 oz.) frozen patty shells
1 small onion, chopped
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 con (12 oz.) roast beef with gravy
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
¼ cup chopped drained canned mushrooms
¼ cup fine dried bread crumbs
1 egg yolk, beaten with 1 tablespoon water
Sesame seeds or coarse ground pepper

Let patty shells thaw in refrigerator overnight.

For filling, saute onion in butter until tender. Flake roast beef into gravy; combine with onion, parsley, mushrooms and bread crumbs; mix well.

On well-floured board, roll out dough for each patty shell to make piece about 6 inches in diameter. Spread with beef mixture almost to edges. Moiste edges with water; fold pastry over filling and pinch edges together to seal. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops with egg mixture; sprinkle with seeds or pepper. Bake at 400 degrees 25 to 30 minutes, or until pastry is browned and done.

Serve hot with hot or chilled soup, or with salad. Makes 6.

4 beef bouillon cubes
2 carrots, scraped and diced
2 cups shredded cabbage (about ¼ small head)
1 small onion, sliced
1 can (1 lb.) shoestring beets
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 cups water
juice
Sour cream
Sliced green onions

Bring first 5 ingredients to boiling; cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add beets with their liqud and lemon juice; heat. Top each serving with generous dollop of sour cream; garnish with sliced green onions.

Makes 6 servings.

Budget-Minded Menus: New Version of Beef

Ask any member of your family and they're sure to agree — hamburger is a big favorite. But its popularity doesn't mean it has to be monotonous.

Take this Meatball Carbonnade a la Flamande, for instance. It's not as complicated as the name implies, and it's certain to become one of your family's favorite "hamburger" dinners.

Meatball Carbonnade a la Flamande — it's simply meatballs and onions in beer sauce. Just brown the meatballs, saute the onions, combine them in a tangy beer sauce and simmer in the over to a rich golden brown. Sprinkled with a topping of crisp crumbled bacon and served with boiled new potatoes, this is a dish that's kind to the budget and to the palate.

HAMBURGER FOR DINNER — Meatball Carbonnade a la Flamande—meatballs and onions in beer sauce — is light on the budget but not on flavor. It should be served with boiled new potatoes.

Meatball Carbonnade a la Flamande

Four strips bacon
Two pounds ground beef
Two eggs
One-half cup dry bread crumbs
One teaspoon salt
One-fourth teaspoon pepper
Bouquet garni*
Four cups thinly sliced onion
Two tablespoons flour
One can or bottle (12 ozs.) beer
One cup beef stock
Two teaspoons brown sugar
Two teaspoons vinegar
One-half teaspoon thyme
Two tablespoons minced fresh parsley

Cook bacon until crisp, drain on paper towels, crumble and set aside. Pour off most of excess fat into small bowl, leaving thin film in bottom of skillet. Combine ground beef, eggs, bread crumbs, salt and pepper; mix well. Shape into walnut-sized balls. Brown meatballs in skillet, a few at a time, shaking skillet to keep them round. Remove meatballs to 3-quart casserole. Bury the bouquet garni in the meat. Saute onions in remaining fat in skillet 10 to 15 minutes, until golden. Add onions to casserole. Stir flour into remaining fat in skillet. (If mixture seems dry, add a little reserved bacon fat). Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until the roux is amber color being careful it does not burn. Pour in beer and beef stock; bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute, then add sugar, vinegar and thyme; simmer 2 or 3 minutes. Pour sauce over meat and onions. Bring mixture to a boil on top of range. Cover tightly and bake in 350 degrees over 45 minutes. Discard bouquet garni. Garnish with reserved crumbed bacon and snipped parsley. Serve with boiled potatoes. Makes 4 to 6 servings. *Made of 3 sprigs of parsley and 1 bay leaf, tied together.

WIFE ACCEPTS HUSBAND'S CUSTOMS

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been married to a man from India for several years. My husband has not informed his family of our marriage because he has an unmarried older brother. My husband says it is etiquette for the older children to marry first, and that our marriage would show disrespect to the older brother. To make matters worse, this brother doesn't seem to be in any hurry to marry. How can we correctly handle this situation without hurting feelings?—"American Wife"

Dear "American Wife": Although I understand your desire to have your husband's family recognize and approve of your marriage, I would not try to push him into doing anything about it now. When you married a man from India, you must have been willing to accept the fact that his ways would be different from yours. Furthermore, you are living in America, so the fact that his family does not know of your marriage should not affect your happiness too much. If you want to have a happy relationship with his family, go along with his customs.

Little "Extras" That Count

Dear Mrs. Post: I visited another city recently on a business trip. The young man I date lives there. While I was there his mother invited me to dinner at her house. I could not go, but I did stop at the house on my way to another date that evening. I wrote his mother a thank-you note. Later when he called me, he said "My mother thought that was the dumbest note. She said you weren't even here an hour." What is your opinion—Joyce.

Dear Joyce: The note was not necessary, but because it wasn't, the gesture was all the more commendable. It is not what we have to do that makes us well-mannered, attractive people; it is the little thoughtful "extras" that make one outstanding.

Your friend's mother showed an astounding lack of appreciation.

Ulster Wins 11th Straight, 114-75

Post Junior Script: UCCC-Suofflk "Close"

JAMMED UP — Larry Trippodo (42) one of the big stars in UCCC's rout of Post Junior College Saturday finds himself jammed up on a drive. Around him are (11) Post's Frank Fiorita (24) teammate Tony Pough and partially obscure (45) Don Valdez of Post. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

KINGSTON

The inevitable question had to be asked after UCC's streaking Senators had demolished high scoring Post Junior College of Waterbury, Conn. 114-75. Saturday night in one of their rare home appearances at the municipal auditorium.

And what better qualified team to pose the question to than Post, a 25-point loser to Suffolk and 39-point losers to Ulster Community.

Is Suffolk Community of Selden, L.I. a better team than Ulster?

Coach John Sullivan of the soundly whipped Warriors adroitly side-stepped a direct and had some qualifications about court sizes.

On whose court?

A neutral court, of course.

"If it were played on a regulation-size size court, I think it would be a tossup." said Sullivan. "Suffolk has a big, fast team and the kind of manpower to stay with Ulster. It would be very interesting." Coach Sullivan got off-the-spot like.

Moss the Greatest

"Now, if you ask me who the No. 1 player in Region XV is, that's easy," Sullivan added. "There isn't anybody in the region who can touch him. Steve Washington of Westchester comes the closest. Jerry ought to be able to write his own ticket with four-year colleges next year." The Post players agreed to a man.

Coach Sullivan surprisingly wrote off his own top gun—Ed Hill, a 30-point average shooter, who was reduced to a cap pistol (13 points) by the relentless 3-1-1 full court press and collapsing zone and a particularly outstanding defensive job by Larry Tripoddo, who gave UCC his best game of the season and 18 points.

Hill collected seven points in the first half, five in the second, was yanked for a few minutes late in the first half and spent the most miserable night of his career.

What was wrong with Hill tonight?

"If I could tell you," replied Coach Sullivan "I'd be a genius."

It Was All UCC. . .

UCC broke the game open in the first four and a half minutes. The surprisingly inept Warriors were tight and tense, lost the ball on travelling violations three times in the first two minutes, fell behind 9-1, then 17-2 with 4:30 elapsed and it was never a contest after that.

Tony Pough and Larry Trippodo sparked the early UCC burst with 11 points and Post didn't score a basket until Jeff Quintavella hit at 4:30 to make it 17-4.

Coach Mike Perry took UCCC's 11th straight victory in good stride. He appeared to be more concerned about the national ratings and some valid recognition for his overpowering team.

"We ought to get some votes after this win," he said. He eschewed any comparison with Suffolk, firmly believing UCCC is No. 1.

He did have a few words about the relation of defense and offense in basketball.

"The value of defense in basketball was there tonight," he observed. "They came in here with a 103 scoring average but we were able to contain them and they couldn't handle us."

UCCC widened its lead to 43-26 before Post ran off a 10-2 spurt to close the half at 55-36. Any doubt that Ulster could maintain its margin of superiority was quickly erased in the first minute of the second half.

A Tapin by Glenn Berry, a Moss drive and three-pointer by Kirkwood opened up a 25-point lead (63-38) with 16:20 still left to play. Randy Chiles, Post's top rebounder, went out on 5 fouls on Kirkwood's three-pointer and Coach Sullivan drew a technical for protesting the call.

Kirkwood drilled three straight baskets before existing on five personals with 14 minutes left and UCCC leading 72-49. Pough exited on personals with 12:30 left. Four baskets by Trippodo sent UCCC ahead 96-63 and with 3:35 on the clock., Moss calmly sank two free throws to send Ulster to the 100 mark and a 100-67 lead.

SIDEBARS: The UCCC balance was still there—Moss 20, Pough 17, Kirkwood 15, Berry 17 Trippodo 18 and Torron 13. Hill managed to lead Post with 13 points, but only got off 12 shots. His norm is between 25 and 30, Coach Sullivan said. Pough and Trippodo were superb in the first half.

The score:

ULSTER (114)	FG	FP	T	POST JUNIOR (75)	FG	FP	T

Gabriel Gets Job Done

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel got the job done as he did for the Los Angeles Rams in 11 straight games when he came up with a perfect pass Sunday that the West All-Stars rode to a 16-13 win over the East in the NFL's 20th Pro Bowl football game.

Gale Sayers of the Bears was voted the most valuable back of the game but there were many among the 57,786 in the Coliseum and in the press box, where the balloting took place, who felt Gabriel might have gotten the honor if the poll was taken after the game instead of during the fourth quarter.

Subjected to a fierce charge by Dallas defensive stars Bob Lilly and George Andrie, who was named lineman of the game, Gabriel cooly threw the clincher, a 28-yard pass to Carroll Dale of the Packers with 72 seconds left to win the game.

Winning West coach Norm Van Brocklin of Atlanta and losing coach Tom Fears of New Orleans joined in praising Gabriel for his clutch effort.

"You've got to give Gabriel a lot of credit," said Fears. "We put a powerful rush on him. But that last pass was just a thing of beauty. There's no defense against a perfectly thrown ball and a great catch. An the West got both."

East defensive coach Jack Faulkner pointed out defensive back Mel Renfro of the Cowboys, one of the best in pro football, had excellent coverage on Dale but there was no way the defender could keep him from catching the ball in the end zone.

"Gabriel did a tremendous job of getting the West together for the fourth period," Van Brocklin said.

Gabriel, named the most valuable player in the National Football League the past season, said he told his linemen before throwing the touchdown pass that he needed some extra protection. He added, "I got it."

The West had preceded the winning touchdown with a fourth period safety when punter Bob Walden of the Steelers was forced to fall on a bad center pass in the end zone.

But Fears said four fumbles in the first half, when the East piled up a 13-7 lead, cost his team the game because without the miscues it might have piled up a bigger lead.

An unsung hero, except to his teammates, was defensive tackle Gary Aarsen of the Vikings. He rushed to the game from his home in nearby Whittier, Calif., when notified at 11:30 a.m. that Fred Miller of the Colts had suffered a detached retina and was unable to play.

The game started as a Cleveland Brown production with quarterback Bill Nelsen and running back Leroy Kelly combining to get the East touchdown with Kelly going the final 10 yards.

Then Tom Dempsey of New Orleans got into the act with his first of two field goals before the West could score. It was a 46-yard kick.

Sayers set up the first West touchdown with his rushing and pass receiving although Gabriel carried it over in the second period from one yard. Sayers was the top rusher with 75 yards and the leading receiver with 66 yards to gain the honor of the most valuable back.

Foyt Wins

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A. J. Foyt won the 500 mile Riverside Motor Trend stock car race, yet his first thoughts were of the driver he'd seen critically injured.

"He hit and flew up and I knew he had hit awfully hard," said Foyt who was ahead of Jim Cook in laps but behind him on the course, going into turn No. 9 of Riverside International Raceway.

"If you're going only 100 miles an hour and hit solid, it will hurt you."

Foyt knows. An accident at this track in 1965 broke his back and put him in the hospital for months.

Cook, approaching the turn, tried to avoid a jam-up by going around it on the outside. Instead he slammed head-on into the wall.

The 48-year-old father of six, a Norwalk, Calif., roofer by trade, underwent surgery at Riverside Community Hospital immediately after being evacuated by helicopter.

His condition Sunday night was listed as very critical.

Earlier another driver, Buddy Young of Fairfax, Va., escaped serious injury even though his car rolled about 15 times in another single-car accident.

Only 15 of 44 starters were running at the conclusion of the 193-lap test for as Foyt explained, "This is a very, very tough race to finish. Equipment wouldn't take this much beating in 200,000 miles of highway driving."

Back-court Stars Have Their Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From Boston west to Phoenix and from Milwaukee south to Atlanta the big noises in the National Basketball Association came from the bombing of backcourtmen.

The shooting of guards provided the spark as the Boston Celtics upset the New York Knicks 109-102, the Phoenix Suns edged the Baltimore Bullets 135-134, and Milwaukee Bucks trounced the San Francisco Warriors 123-107, the Atlanta Hawks drubbed the Chicago Bulls 125-107, the Philadelphia 76ers walloped the Cincinnati Royals 141-116 and the Detroit Pistons topped the Los Angeles Lakers 106-100.

Indiana downed New York 129-111, Denver blasted Carolina 155-112 and Los Angeles took Dallas 137-124 in the ABA.

Reserve guard Emmette Bryant came off the bench at the start of the second period and scored 13 points in the third quarter to spark Boston to a 90-80 lead. John Havlicek scored 30 points for the Celtics, who became the first team to beat Eastern Division-leading New York twice this season. Willis Reed led the Knicks with 31 points.

Phoenix trailed Baltimore by 24 points with 16 minutes left. Then guard Gail Goodrich shot in 12 of his 22 points in the final period as the Suns came back to win on rookie Lamar Green's tip-in with seven seconds left.

Dick Van Arsdale topped Phoenix scorers with 30 points. Kevin Loughery gunned in 34 points and Jack Marin 33 for Baltimore.

Another backcourtman, Jon McGlocklin, hit for 25 of his 29 points as Milwaukee built a 58-39 halftime advantage en route to a victory that moved the Bucks to within five games of New York.

Greg Smith added 25 and Lew Alcindor 23 for Milwaukee. Ron Williams tossed in 26 for San Francisco, playing without injured Nate Thurmond and Jeff Mullins, who was on military reserve duty.

Playmaker Walt Hazzard connected for 40 points in leading Western Division-leading Atlanta over Chicago, which was paced by Tom Bowerwinkle with an NBA career high 29 points.

Hal Greer, known as a high-scoring guard, led Philadelphia's route of Cincinnati with 27 points. Luther Rackley paced the Royals with 25.

Orr Boosts Record With Goal-Assist

BOSTON (AP) — Fabulous Bobby Orr, always the last one to jump on his own bandwagon, still thinks his chances of winning the National Hockey League scoring title are on the slim side.

The 21-year-old superstar of the Boston Bruins had a goal and an assist in Sunday night's 6-3 victory over Montreal to break his own season scoring record for a defenseman and keep rolling along in the league lead, but he has his doubts about staying there.

"We're only a little more than halfway through the season," he said after the game, "and a few guys haven't started scoring the way they can yet."

One of those "few guys," of course, is Orr's teammate Phil Esposito, the 1968-69 scoring champion. Watched closely by opposing teams, Espy struggled a bit at the start of this season but has been coming on strongly of late to thrust himself into the race. He too had a goal and an assist Sunday night, and now has 54 points.

Esposito, though, wants no part of any talk about individual races.

"We're just going to keep playing hockey the way we have been," the big center said. "We're trying to win games. Bobby's playing terrific, and the more points he gets, the better it is for the team."

Orr got his assist Sunday night right at the start when he helped set up a goal by Esposito in the first minute of play. Then after the Bruins had fallen behind 2-1 in the second period, he blasted in a slap shot from the blue line to tie the score late in the session.

The assist was his 52nd of the season and the goal was his 15th, giving him 65 points with nearly half the campaign still to go compared to the record full season production of 21-43-64 which he set a year ago.

The Canadiens came back to take a 3-2 lead, however, on a goal by Yvon Cournoyer in the closing minute of the second period, only to have Boston stage a four-goal barrage by Jim Lorentz, Fred Stanfield, Eddie Westfall and John Bucyk in the finale.

"It felt great," Orr said of the record-breaking goal and the prolonged ovation it drew from the 14,835 fans at Boston Garden. "It wouldn't have meant as much if we had lost though, that's for sure. It didn't look too good at the end of the second period."

In other NHL action, Detroit downed Los Angeles 3-1, Chicago topped Oakland by the same score and Pittsburgh fought off Philadelphia 6-4.

DOUBLE WINNER — French ski ace Patrick Russel swings his poles past the posts on his way to victory in the special Slalom Race at the International Ski Meet in Kitzbuchel, Austria Sunday. Russel, the leader in the race for World Cup honors, also won the Alpine Combined Events of the coveted Hahnekamm Trophy. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Russel of France Combined Winner

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (UPI)—World Cup leader Partick Russel of France took both the slalom and the Alpine combined of the coveted Hahnenkamm Trophy Sunday after a thrilling race against his Italian arch-rival Gustav Thoeni, a new star in Alpine skiing.

Russel, 23, from Grenoble, danced and darted through a total of 145 gates on two tricky courses to take the slalom in 110.77 seconds—half a second ahead of Thoeni who led after the first heat.

Thoeni, 18, was second in 111.27 and Jean Noel Augert of France third in 112.88.

Russel, who also won the recent Lauberhorn Slalom, the other major classic in this world championships season, took the Hahnenkamm combined title ahead of Gustav Thoeni and Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland.

"I had a perfect run on the second course," Russel said after his victory." I could not have raced better. When Thoeni led after the first heat, I knew that I had to attack, attack and attack again."

Thoeni, starting in the second seeded group well after the top seeded favorites, took all possible chances when he almost jumped through the gates on his second run but failed to keep his first heat lead.

"Russel deserved to win—he was great today," Thoeni said. "But it may be different at the world races."

The 1970 Hahnenkamm trophy, the 30th edition of this annual ski meet, was hampered by lack of snow that forced organizers to replace to downhill race with a two-day giant slalom.

Barbara Wins

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Blonde American Barbara Cochran, swept Sunday's slalom event and took top honors in the two-day Pohorje competition for the women's World Cup in Alpine skiing.

"See? I told you I hoped to win," the jubilant 19-year-old from Richmond, Vt., said after winning the slalom with an aggregate time of 49.41 seconds for two heats.

"So I did it, and I feel great," she said. "I felt I was really aggressive today and did much better than Saturday in giant slalom."

Upsets Mighty Keino

Modest John Lawson Explains Victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Veteran distance runner John Lawson, a Kansas Jawhawker in college, modestly claimed he had a home advantage over Kipchoge Keino of Kenya when he upset the Olympic games' 1,500-meter star in the mile feature of the Sunkist Invitational indoor track meet.

Lawson's victory Saturday night was the highlight of a series of outstanding performances and his win brought the ex-Kansas runner the "athlete of the meet" award.

Although Keino was beaten in the mile, two other foreign performers lived up to their advance billing.

Ralph Doubell of Australia came within five-tenths of a mark when he won the 1,000-second of the world indoor yard run in 2:06.5. And England's Ian Stewart scored just as easy a win in the two-mile run in the excellent early season time of 8:41.2.

Lawson's mile triumph in 4:00.6 drew the biggest roar of appreciation from a crowd of 10,010 at the Sports Arena that had been drawn to the stadium by the appearance of Keino, considered the world's top man at the distance.

As he has done so often at indoor meets, Bob Seagren dominated the field events by winning the pole vault with a height of 17 feet, 1-2 inch. And Seagren had the spectators tense as he tried for a world indoor mark of 17-7 but missed.

"I wanted to run under four minutes," Lawson said, "but beating Kip compensated for that. I ran a 57.5 last lap. I was real pleased when I saw Keino coming back to me."

Keino said he knew Lawson was coming at him in the final lap but he couldn't increase his speed. He explained, "my legs were a bit heavy."

Maturity Does It—Douglass

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Dale Douglass, one of a flock of tour regulars who have come into their own in the last couple of years, said a touch of maturity may be responsible for the rise in his golfing fortunes.

"The last two years have been marked by a significant change," the articulate, soft-spoken Douglass said Sunday after taking the title in the $100,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

"I've always managed well, managed my game well. But now I'm just playing better. And I'm putting much, much better. That makes all the difference.

"Maturity may have something to do with it. I'm getting a little old not to have matured some," the 33-year-old said.

Douglass, a lean and lanky mountaineer now playing out of Evergreen, Colo., charged out of a tightly bunched field with a final round 66, five under par.

Douglass, a 6-foot-2, 160 pounder, scored his first tour victory last year in the Azalea Open, a minor tournament, then captured the Kemper Open en route to the best year of his 10-year pro career.

He finished the season with $91,500 in money winnings and gained a spot on the United States' Ryder Cup team. A money clip, given him by members of the opposing British team after those matches, incidentally, was taken from his golf bag before his final round.

Douglass finished at 271, 13 under par on the 6,765-yard, par 71 Phoenix Country Club course, and had a one-stroke margin over veteran Howie Johnson and Gene Littler, the defending champion and third round leader.

Littler slipped to a final 70 while Johnson had a 68.

Tied at 273 were Dave Hill, Dave Marr, U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, Bob Lunn and Tom Weiskopf. Hill, Marr and Moody all had 67s, Lunn a 68 and Weiskopf a 70.

Homero Blancas was alone at 274 after a 71, while John Miller, the rookie who barged into contention with a remarkable 61 in the third round, faded to a 71 and was one of five at 275.

Rupp Wants That Last One

By United Press International

Another winning hand by Adolph Rupp could be his last.

It is obvious that the reign of Baron Rupp is close to an end following 40 years at the University of Kentucky, and perhaps all he wants now is one more champion to go out wearing a crown.

At 68, Rupp is disabled by diabetes, causing him trouble if he stands on his feet too long, and he often has trouble with his memory. But he's still a master on the bench and his Wildcats are in good position to give him the graduation present he so much desires. They overran Tennessee, 68-52, Saturday night to run their unbeatean string to 13 games.

There are three goals Rupp has in mind: his 25th Southeastern Conference championship, the No. 1 ranking in the country and his fifth NCAA title.

The first object is the easiest as Kentucky is in a class of its own in the SEC and already has a 5-0 league record. However, defending national and NCAA champion UCLA is a major thorn in the side of Rupp in regard to the other two goals.

UCLA, despite three one-point decisions in the first half of the season, also is unbeaten and the Bruins ran their record to 12-0 with a 94-72 pasting of Loyola of Chicago Saturday night. As long as it keeps winning, UCLA seems certain to hold on to the No. 1 ranking, leaving Kentucky second.

To further gall Rupp, Bruin coach John Wooden is the only man to win more NCAA championships than him. Thanks in large part to Lew Alcindor, Wooden has coached five NCAA winners to four for Rupp.

Both teams have the better part of a week to contemplate the second half of the season as Kentucky doesn't return to action until Saturday against Louisiana State and UCLA rests until a pair of weekend meetings against UC Santa Barbara on Friday and Wyoming on Saturday.

With examinations taking precedence at many schools, four members of the top 10 were idle Saturday night and the big teams face a lighter schedule than usual this week. Those idle Saturday were third-ranked South Carolina, fourth-ranked St. Bonaventure, seventh-ranked Jacksonville and eighth-ranked Houston.

Two others among the elite were beaten, No. 6 North Carolina falling to Wake Forest, 91-90, and ninth-ranked Davidson losing to St. Joseph's, 90-81.

Bruton Has a Suggestion

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Curt Flood's lawsuit against baseball could result in a spirit of compromise that would benefit the players without shaking the foundations of the game, former outfielder Billy Bruton said Sunday.

"At least that's my hope," Bruton said. "Players in the past have tested baseball's reserve clause. I would hope that if it comes to court again, some sort of middle ground could be reached so both the owners and the players would be satisfied."

Bruton, whose opening day home run in 1953 won the Braves' first game in Milwaukee, was back in town for the 17th Annual Diamond Dinner

Kickers Drop Two Indoor Games

WHITE PLAINS — Kingston Sport Club Kickers lost both of their games in opening round play in the German-American Soccer Association's annual Indoor Soccer Classic Sunday at the County Center.

New York Hota took over the early lead on 5 points with two wins and a tie. New York Hungarians are in second place at the end of the first round with four points on a victory and two ties.

Klaus Weber broke out of a long scoring slump to score the lone goal as Elizabeth Sport Club edged the upstaters, 2-1; then added another as Blue Star racked up a 4-2 win. Jimmy Reinhardt picked up the other Kicker goal.

The Hota booters, only team ever to win the tournament twice, scored their five points with wins over the powerful Greek-Americans, 1-0, and Inter Giuliana, 4-2. Then came a scoreless tie with Eintracht.

Hungarians Win Twice

German-Hungarians won twice, defeating the New York Ukranians, 5-2, and Blue Star, 3-0. Greek-Americans, winners of the Major League the last three years, didn't fare so well, losing twice before routing Blau Weiss Gottschee, 3-0.

Inter-Giuliana, last year's winner, played three games without a victory. It tied New York Hungaria, 2-2; and lost to Gottschee, 2-1; and Hota, 4-2.

In other games, New York Hungarian and Inter-Giuliana tied 2-2; New York Ukrainians topped Blue Star, 3-1.

The indoor soccer tournament games are of 15 minute duration, split in halves of 7-½ minutes. Skill is, of course, the greatest factor since the short duration of the game does not tax the stamina of the players as much as the outdoor 90-minute regulation game.

On any given day any team can beat any other eam. The best proof is the fact that in six different indoor champions have been crowned in the last seven years.

New York Hota is the only two-time champion (1966; and 1968). Other champions were: Hungaria, B.W. Gottschee, 1963; Greek-Americans, 1965; German Hungarians, 1967 and Inter-Giuliana in 1969.

Sponsored by Schaefer

Sponsor for the two Sunday tournaments is again the F&M Schaefer Brewing Company which has donated a total of $4,500 to be shared by the participating teams and the league. The winning team receives $1,500.

Next Sunday, the Kickers play German-Hungarians in the first game around 2 p.m., then take on New York Ukrainians.

Kingston's starting lineup included goalie Newmerzchyky, Winnie Soddemann, Klaus Weber, Elliott Pobbi-Asare and Jimmy Reinhardt. Subs were Steve Kovalenko, Mike Newmerzchyky and Timo Leikoski.

After the "Flood" Comes the Chaos

NEW YORK (UPI)—After flood chaos.

That's the contention of the commissioner of baseball and the presidents of the American and National Leagues regarding the federal suit brought by St. Louis Cardinal-Philadelphia Phillie outfielder Curt Flood.

Flood, resisting the trade which will send him from the Cards to the Phillies, has challenged baseball's reserve clause, which binds players to the teams with which they originally sign unless traded or sold.

As far as organized baseball is concerned a victory for Flood could have seven disastrous results —including the end of organized baseball.

American League president Joe Cronin and National League president Chub Feeney, commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the 24 clubs have been directed to show cause before U.S. District Court Judge Dudley B. Bonsal, Jan. 20 "or as soon thereafter as counsel can beheard", why Flood's request to be made a free agent should not be granted.

Flood's suit was filed by former United Nations Ambassador Arthur Goldberg after the star centerfielder's request to be made a free agent was refused by Kuhn. The suit is being backed by the Major League Players Association and its executive director, Marvin Miller.

Flood, traded to Philadelphia by St. Louis during the winter, made the request to Kuhn on Dec. 24. Kuhn answered that he had no choice but to rule that Flood adhere to the terms of the contract which he signed with the Cardinals.

"When a player refuses to honor an assignment, he violates his contract, in which he agrees that assignments may be made, and he violates the fundamental baseball rules, including the reserve clause, which experience has shown to be absolutely necessary to the successful operation of baseball, said Cronin and Feeney.

"The court action commenced by Curt Flood attacks these fundamental rules and makes the same charges that have been made in the past and rejected by the Supreme Court of the United States," they continued. 'We have complete confidence that the rules of professional baseball, which have been central to the success of the game over many decades and which have permitted players such as Curt Flood to reap rich personal rewards, will withstand this new attack."

Cronin and Feeney added that the Major League Players Association's decision to support Flood's suit "violates its pledge to the clubs to use its best efforts to ensure that all terms and conditions of all uniform player's contracts signed by individual players will be carried out in full.'"

The seven chaotic results which would be created if there were no reserve clause were listed by Cronin and Feeney as follows:

1. "Without the reserve clause the wealthier clubs could sign an unbeatable team of all-stars, totally destroying league competition.

2. "Clubs of more limited resources woud be stripped of their stars and their ability to field a team which the public would accept.

3. "The integrity of the game would be threatened as players could negotiate with one club while playing for another.

4. "Clubs could no longer afford to spend millions of dollars to scout and sign new players and to subsidize their development in the minor leagues. No club build with assurance and no intelligent persons would continue invest the large capital required for player compensation, an unmatched pension and benefit plan costing $5,450,000 per year, minor league subsidies and the other costs of operating major league club.

5. "The minor leagues, which exist only because of major league support, would be destroyed. Professional baseball is the only team sport that finances the development of its players.

6. "Mutually advantageous trades would become impossible if the players' consents were required, thus preventing contract assignments which have been beneficial to both clubs and players and which are exciting to those who support the game of baseball.

7. "Professional baseball would simply cease to exist."

Dear Abby

Marriage References?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Marriage is one of the most important decisions a person has to make in his life, right? So why shouldn't a person take as much pains in selecting a mate as he would in hiring an employee I mean, no one in his right mind would hire anyone until he checked his references, and found out if he quit his last job or was fired.

Also, he would like to know something about his habits, disposition, ability to get along with others, etc.

What I am getting at is this. I think every person who is considering marrying a divorced person should sit down with that person's ex-mate and have a long talk with him. One could learn more just listening for an hour than living with someone for a year.

PRACTICAL

DEAR PRACTICAL: Your idea would never work. When a marriage is considered, the candidates are looking at the world (and each other) thru rose-colored glasses, which they would be reluctant to discard in favor of a magnifying glass. Also, tho some divorces are more civilized than others, few part "friends," and one wouldn't expect to get an impartial reference from an enemy. And lastly, one woman's leftovers can be another woman's banquet.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am planning to marry in exactly four weeks. My future husband is everything a woman would want in a man, but there is one thing that is upsetting me.

I am of the opinion that once the wedding date has been set, all past "ties" with old friends should be broken. He, on the other hand has different ideas. He sees nothing wrong with keeping in touch (by letter) with one woman in particular.

What do you think

If I'm willing to forget all male associations of my past and devote myself exclusively to my fiance, am I wrong to expect him to do the same for me. Please hurry, as I am

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: You sound desperate as well as possessive and sadly unsure of yourself. Don't make an issue of it, and don't doubt his devotion to you, or he may begin to doubt it, too.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I just hate to answer my telephone for fear it's my husband's daughters calling for a ride.

You see, when I met Howard he was already married, but that marriage had been messed up for years, so it's not like I broke up his happy home or anything.

Well, Howard's wife caught us and she divorced him. Then Howard married me. Hs two teen-age daughters live with his ex-wife not far from here. The "ex" doesn't speak to me, but hardly a day goes by without those girls calling me for transportation somewhere. Sometimes it's just to take them downtown to shop and goof around. (I wouldn't be surprised if Howard's wife puts them up to calling me.)

I want very much for these girls to like me, Abby, but it's not always convenient for me to chauffeur them. How can I get this across without getting them mad at me. Do you really think I owe these girls 24-hour taxi service Or do you think they're just using me

WIFE OF 3 MONTHS

DEAR WIFE: I think they're just "using" you. And apparently YOU must think you "owe" the girls something or you wouldn't be available at the jingle of the telephone. Explain the situation to your husband and advise him that you'll have to turn the girls down now and then. Then explain it to the girls, and put an end to being used.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WORRIED SICK" IN KANSAS CITY: I Cannot guarantee that psychiatric treatment will "change" him. But it could help him to understand his problem, ACCEPT it, and learn to live with it.

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 1970

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get more done than you thought possible. Key is to open mind to contacts. Be ready to expand, not pull back. There is new zest to activities. You get going in right direction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Tie up some loose ends. Opportunity abounds. But you must be selective. Refuse to be satisfied with second best—hold out for top spot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Guard valuables. Some who take you places can be careless with belongings. Stress ability to write, communicate. You get meaningful compliments from one who admires your personality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle continues high; however, something you took for granted may suddenly change. Means be alert, especially in connection with home, property and family. You will be eventual winner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Realize that minor disturbance is not major calamity. A friend who "sounds off" may merely be testing. Important to maintain sense of humor. Visit one confined to home, hospital.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study LEO message. Your ambitions are strong; you want results. You get them by heeding what appears to be unorthodox advice. Older individual does know the field. Listen!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): No day to follow the crowd. Some will claim you are being different for sake of being different. But this merely betrays their envy. Enlarge horizons—and adhere to individual style.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A maneuver that occurs behind the scenes may have direct effect on your progress. Be independent without being arrogant. Know that what you have to offer is of great value.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friendship and moneylending do not mix today. Use your intuition. Follow hunch. Share knowledge. But be sure others are willing to aid themselves.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Position of those at helm could be less than steady. Be knowledgable, alert, ready to step in with alternatives. Key is willingness to assume unfamiliar role. You'll succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diplomatic approach is best one today. Avoid trying to force issues. One who works with you may come up with interesting report. Be analytical and not in too much of a hurry.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional reactions are definite and direct. You get what you want—but self-control is a requisite. Some changes are also necessary. Catch up on calls, correspondence.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you may be considered musical; you certainly appreciate the talents of many in this direction. You encourage the underdog and help the handicapped. Some confusion which has been haunting you is cleared away during February.

TEEN FORUM

UNLIKE: (Q.) Is it right for me to date boys of another color?

I have known of white girls who have dated Negro boys and who have become outcasts because of it.

We are supposed to have equal rights. Do we not have the right to date and maybe marry the boys we want to?

I have not read anything about this in your column.—A Believer in Equal Opportunity in Johnstown, Pa.

(A.) I have answered similar questions from both boys and girls. You must have missed them.

I agree completely with your belief that we all have equal opportunities. And we should be as free as possible of prejudice, which according to a wise old saying is equal to ignorance.

But we also must not be ignorant of or blind to human nature. It has always been hard for two drastically different people to make a success of love or marriage.

A rich girl and a poor boy, an uneducated husband and an educated wife, a boy of one faith and a girl of another—a couple with such widely different backgrounds should ask themselves very searchingly if their strength and their love are enough to win through.

A girl of one race and a boy of another should ask themselves the same question.

COLLEGE RING: (Q.) My girl and I graduated last June. I am wearing her high-school ring and she is wearing mine. I have a college ring now and she wants me to give it to her. Should I?—A Young College Student.

(A.) No. Keep it and wear it yourself. The exchange of high-school rings, as you two have done, is a widespread custom, partly because so many boys and girls have them. A college ring is different. It is a mark of higher accomplishment and is properly worn by the recipient.

Opening lead—♠ 6

Oswald: "George Gooden of Carmel, Calif., may well be the world's most successful bridge teacher. He has just sent us a book showing the bidding and play of 24 simple hands. Maybe we should discuss some of them this week."

Jim: "A good idea. Our column has been running a trifle too tough lately."

Oswald: "His Deal Number Two concerns the opening bid of one no-trump and development of long-suit cards into winning tricks. He uses the standard 16-18 for his opening no-trump and South has exactly 18 high-card points."

Jim: "North has 10 high-card points. There is no reason to try for a slam or to bother with the five-card diamond suit. Ten plus 16 is 26; 10 plus 18 is 28. The partnership total cannot exceed 26 to 28, so a raise to three no-trump is indicated."

Oswald: "George points out that South can count eight top trick winners and that he can find additional winners in either clubs or diamonds."

Jim: "There are two reasons why he should go after diamonds. The first is that there are two potential extra tricks there. The second is he can get that long-suit trick provided that diamonds break either 4-2 or 3-3 while the extra club trick can only result from a 3-3 split."

Oswald: "There is another reason to start on diamonds. If either opponent shows out on the second lead there is still plenty of time to go after clubs."

Jim: "One more point. South must win the first spade in his own hand so as to leave the spade ace as an entry to dummy for the fifth diamond, assuming the suit breaks 4-2 as it actually does."

Really Big Show—Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael James Brody Jr., the generous margarine millionaire, not only made the headlines over the weekend, he also broke into show business—at the top.

That keen and flexible booker of talent, Ed Sullivan, moved fast and signed up the 21-year-old Brody for his Sunday night show. Brody had been handing out money for several days and promising to give away more. Knowing public curiosity was running high, Sullivan kept Brody's "singing debut" until close to the end of the CBS hour.

When it came, it may have been the biggest anticlimax in television since the marriage of Tiny Tim. Brody, in casual clothes and clutching a guitar, came on stage with his young wife and announced diffidently, "This is my first appearance anywhere ever." He strummed the guitar and sang something called "You Ain't Going Nowhere." At the conclusion, Mike kissed his wife, confided that "I've got 100 billion dollars to give out next week," and disappeared.

It is very probable that Brody makes a better philanthropist than performer and it is almost certain that Ed Sullivan will have a big fat rating for his show because Brody appeared on it.

The other acts were the standard Sullivan mix—the singing-dancing Kessler Twins, Cassius Clay, in a scene from his now closed Broadway play, a comedy magic turn, and June Allyson singing a medley of old songs. Brody, it turned out, brightened the Sullivan corner considerably.

Most actuality programs are produced by the networks, which use their own news departments, and thus even a well done program by an independent producer has difficulty finding a network berth.

"Thirty Days to Survival" is one of those, but it impressed a sponsor who lined up a lot of independent stations to broadcast it. The program is the filmed account of the experiences of a group of young Americans—average age 17—in the mountain wilderness of Wyoming.

The expedition was headed by Paul Petzoldt, founder of the National Outdoor Leadership School, who believes that an experience in survival builds character and independence.

Petzoldt and his aides taught the young people how to climb and descend the sheer face of mountains, to cross rushing streams, to identify edible roots and nuts, to fish, to read maps and follow trails.

The party packed into wilderness country carrying their own supplies to learn for a month under supervision. Then they were left to their own devices 60 or 70 miles from the nearest ranch to make their way back by living off the land. They made it, it was hard, and it was the basis of a very interesting hour of television.

ABC begins a major schedule revision tonight when "It Takes a Thief" moves into the time period formerly occupied by "Music Scene." It will be followed at 2:30 EST by a two-hour film broadcast. This means that hereafter an ABC movie rerun will be competing with NBC's Monday night movie rerun.

Home and Abroad—Spiro's Trip a Success

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's 11-nation trip to Asia appears to have been a diplomatic and political success, at home and abroad.

Agnew impressed Asian leaders with his straight and candid talk as he sought to reassure them that the Nixon doctrine means the United States will maintain itself as a Pacific power. At the same time, he emphasized the twin goals of greater Asian self-reliance and avoiding use of U.S. combat troops there in the future.

The trip certainly succeeded in its first basic purpose, to enable Agnew to broaden his knowledge of the world and its problems, and the vice president believes that it succeeded in its other main aim, to give Asian leaders a clearer idea of U.S. intentions in the 1970s.

President Nixon sent Agnew on the trip clearly remembering the benefits he received from a similar mission for President Dwight D. Eisenhower 16 years ago. Agnew returns more conversant with the problems in this key area of the world and able to display this knowledge in the political speech-making he is about to undertake.

But despite Agnew's belief that the Asian leaders with whom he met understand U.S. policy, some doubts remain. His statements about U.S. initiatives towards Communist China caused apprehension and confusion on Formosa, and Thailand seems unsure of American intentions.

The Nixon Far East doctrine itself remains vague.

The administration appears to be deliberately leaving uncertain how it will react to future Communist moves in Asia.

One basic gap in Agnew's trip was that he was unable to get close to the people but confined himself almost exclusively to official functions and meetings with government leaders.

The result was that the view he expressed was that of his advisers and of the officials in the places he visited.

In his public appearances, Agnew did little more than enunciate policies others had made. He stressed repeatedly how well briefed he had been and admitted candidly that his arrival and departure statements had been written by the State Department and by the office of Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's foreign policy adviser, although he called them "compatible with my own thinking."

The trip understandably gave few clues as to how Agnew would fare as an initiator of policy. While the limits under which vice presidents usually operate make this a problem for most holders of the office, Agnew came to it with less of a public record in national and international affairs than others before him.

Yet, Agnew came back from the trip exuding confidence about his ability to handle anything in the foreign field and commented, "I don't feel I was ever unprepared for what I did because I have had a great dea of negotiating experience," a reference to his days as a labor mediator in Baltimore.

The vice president got through his hectic schedule without major public slips.

The trip was designed to prevent slips. There was a limit on public appearances, tight security limited his movements and activities, and his conferences with Asian leaders were relatively short, none more than 90 minutes.

In addition, however, Agnew displayed publicly and privately the poise of a veteran diplomat, despite some stiffness and an obvious difficulty in making small talk.

In public Agnew was a cool, almost diffident man, who seemed satisfied with what he saw and asked few substantive questions.

Thant, Nigerian Huddle; Rules Out Biafra Visit

LAGOS (UPI)—U.N. Secretary General Thant conferred for two hours today with Nigerian leaders but decided against a visit to the defeated former rebel state of Biafra.

Government sources said Thant met with Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon and discussed relief and reconstruction for the former secessionist area, which surrendered a week ago today.

The U.N. official planned to fly to New York later today after holding a news conference. No reason was announced for cancelling his inspection trip of the war zone.

The government-owned newspaper, the Morning Post, editorially praised Thant today for his role in the Nigerian crisis.

"In a world full of political intrigues, of neocolonialist hawks, where military might is right no matter how and where it is used, Thant has unimpeachably demonstrated his faith in human dignity," it said.

Confusion and delays continued to hamper most efforts of foreign nations and relief agencies to fly aid to Lagos for shipment to the former secessionist state.

Flies to Lagos

After winding up a 10-nation tour of Africa, Thant flew to Lagos Sunday. Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the Nigerian chief of state, met him at the airport and promised him he would fly today to Port Harouert in the former rebel area to inspect relief efforts. Thant did not comment to newsmen on his arrival but said he would hold a news conference before departing Lagos.

Two Nigerian planes carrying about 70 newsmen took off for Biafra late Sunday after an eight-hour delay. At least one plane was bound for Port Harcourt in the oil-rich southern sector of the war zone. Other journalists hoped to fly there today.

Two doctors and a nurse left Britain early today for Lagos, the first British relief workers to head for Nigeria since Biafra surrendered to federal authorities last Monday, ending the 2½ year conflict.

Pope Paul Optimistic

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—From gloomy talks only eight days ago of possible genocide in Biafra, Pope Paul VI now takes a more optimistic view of the postwar situation in Nigeria.

"We are happy to announce some good news has come to our attention," the pontiff told crowds in St. Peter's Square Sunday in his regular weekly noontime blessing from his apartment window.

"The responsible government authorities (in Lagos) have given clear guarantees that they will prevent violence and vendettas against the peoples to be aided toward a return to normality," he said.

The Pope did not mention the criticism of the Roman Catholic Church and its relief agency, Caritas, made by the Nigerian government.

Despite the hard feelings about Caritas—a major supplier of food and medicine to the Biafrans before their defeat—Paul said the Vatican is prepared to offer "in friendship and impartiality" aid to help Nigeria regain peace and propserity.

He described Nigeria as a "very dear" nation which has many Catholics.

"We offer thanks from the heart to persons and institutions that have helped and continue to help in this work of human and Christian solidarity," the Pope said.

In last week's weekly blessing, when the fact of Biafra's defeat became apparent, the Pontiff said, "Today's news is very disturbing. . .the situation is most grave." He said there was "a fear of reprisals or of massacre of unarmed populations."

That speech, and similar words of pessimism the following day at a diplomatic reception, increased the Nigerian government's displeasure with the Vatican.

Saturday the Nigerian information minister, Chief Anthony Enahoro, said the papal speeches had shaken confidence in the Lagos government.

Two Caritas representatives are in Nigeria seeking information on missionaries, nuns and priests in Biafra and discussing aid with other relief agencies and the Nigerian government.

World's Mormons Mourn Death of Aged Leader

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — The world's nearly three million Mormons mourned today the death of their prophet, seer and revelator, President David O. McKay.

McKay, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints since April 9, 1951, died early Sunday in his Hotel Utah apartment. He was 96.

Death was attributed by his physician, Dr. Allen T. McFarlane, to acute congestion of the heart. He had suffered from heart and kidney failures for several months and lapsed into a coma shortly after midnight. He died at 6 a.m. Sunday.

His wife of 69 years, Emma, 95, was at his bedside as were most of their seven children.

Was Without Pain

A son, Robert, said McKay was without pain during his final hours and died "peacefully."

Messages of condolences poured into this city, world capital of Mormonism, from thousands of friends and acquaintances; from church leaders; and from President Nixon and former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

President Nixon said the "Mormon Church has been deprived of a distinguished and great leader and America has lost a foremost citizen and human being."

Johnson said McKay's "profound commitment to his fellow man and his faith inspired us to uplift our hopes and our sights toward a better world."

Council To Meet

The LDS Church's Council of Twelve, which assumed leadership of the church upon McKay's death, was to meet today to arrange details of his funeral and to plan for the selection of his successor.

Tentative plans call for funeral services to be noon Thursday in the Salt Lake Tabernacle with burial in the Salt Lake City Cemetery.

Informed sources said the council probably will meet Jan. 29 to pick a new president and the most likely candidate is Joseph Fielding Smith, president of the Council of Twelve and its senior member. His father, Joseph F. Smith, was sixth president of the church and his grandfather, Hyram Smith, was the brother of Joseph Smith, the prophet, founder and first president of the church.

Brigham Young, McKay and others presided over the council at the time they were elevated to the presidency.

Romney Would Hike Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Housing Secretary George Romney says he would advocate a tax increase if necessary to control the inflation which has already made it impossible for half the nation's families to afford a new home.

Romney conceded the nation is building fewer than half enough homes to meet the congressionally set goal of 26 million new units in 10 years. He blamed inflation.

"There is no possible way by which you can achieve that housing goal in an inflationary economy of the type we have at the present time," he said in a UPI "Washington Window" interview.

Romney also said his housing and urban development department is determined to help more poor people—black and white—move into suburbs which have been almost exclusively the preserves of the white and affluent.

He said the department will try to break down racial and economic segregation by enforcement of open housing laws and by scattering housing projects for low and middle income families through the suburbs.

The former Michigan governor was asked if he would advocate a tax increase "If it brought inflation under control."

"Yes sir," he replied. "I think it is absolutely essential that we have a balanced budget and I think if increased taxes are necessary for a balanced budget then we ought to have increased taxes."
